What Made Thought?

Can You Chew Wheat?

Alcohol Kills Too Many

Those Queer Russians

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THOMAS McCARTER, head of New Jersey's public service corporation, voluntarily reduces street-car fares, abolishing the ten cent "casual rate," and doing away with compulsory purchase of "tokens." This is news, because it is so unusual.

Nevertheless, those that are fairly old, remember that the Manhattan Railroad in New York made no money while it charged ten cents, and made plenty of money when it reduced the fare to five cents.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northwestern University medical school, develops this theory: Eons of years back, which means billions of years, ultra violet rays were much more powerful than they are now, and they "activated protoplasm into life."

That's how life came.

The doctor does not tell us what activated the living protoplasm into THOUGHT, emotion, art, imagination.

Chairman Legge, of the farm board, finds a sensible way of unloading some of the wheat that the government bought to stabilize the price that wouldn't stay stabilized, and his unloading will help, not hurt, farmers.

He will stabilize it by feeding it to the hungry. An excellent idea, and the wheat will be worth all that the government paid for it, no matter what the price per bushel.

Roman soldiers carried raw wheat in a bag, and chewed it as they marched. Their skulls show teeth in wonderful condition, much worn down.

Our citizens will hardly learn to chew raw wheat on the march, hunting for jobs.

Since 1920 and under prohibition, deaths from alcohol in the United States have increased 300 per cent, according to Dr. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

It is particularly unpleasant to read that deaths from alcohol have increased among women especially. And it is surprising to read that in the United States under prohibition, deaths caused by alcohol are more than 1000 per cent more numerous than in a majority of the civilized countries. No civilized country has more than 10 per cent of our deaths from that cause.

What is the matter with us?

The Russian government boasts, with reason, of achievements under the "five year plan." It has actually gathered together the billions needed to carry through the plan.

Russia does curious things. For instance, last year it distributed 12,000 tractors, and $24,000,000 worth of other machinery among peasants and others.

The national income of Russia for 1930 is only 33,000,000,000 rubles, about $19,800,000,000. Yet, how much you can do with a little money. Our income is more than a hundred billions of real dollars. But if you suggested giving 12,000 tractors to anybody, you would be called, not merely Bolshevistic, but insane.

Macaulay, able head of Canada's Sun Life Assurance Co., advises our federal reserve banks to buy $500,000,000 worth of good bonds, thus restoring price levels, increasing money in circulation, starting business recovery.

The Federal Reserve and Treasury Department officials say it would be dangerous "to force currency into circulation."

The war forced currency, billions of it, into circulation. Federal Reserve presses worked overtime. But somehow, everything was prosperous, at least for a while.

It is proposed to spend two hundred millions, or so, of public money, to help the unemployed. Corporations are urged to tax themselves and contribute.

But you are told there must be no "dole," none of the English system, under which government gives the min'mum necessary to live, in cash, directly to those out of work.

Everybody hopes it will not be necessary to start the dole here. On the other hand, if money were given direct to those that need it to be spent by themselves, that might be better than spending by committees, and avoid the unpleasant feeling of charity.

Give a woman $15 a week and somehow she will take care of herself, and four or five children. No institution can do that.

Agitation continues about Britain's attitude toward Jerusalem and Palestine generally. Jews denounce Britain's Labor government for not living up to its "mandate" and conspicuous

WARE IS JAILED FOR REFUSAL TO TESTIFY

Former Broker Claims Bankruptcy Referee's Queries Are Improper

George L. Ware, former Boston broker, was sent to Charles st. jail today by Judge Lowell in federal court, who adjudged him in contempt of court for failure to answer questions put by Loring Young, referee in bankruptcy.

Ware was petitioned into bankruptcy in June, 1926, at which time he was indicted on 35 counts in jail by Judge Quinn in Suffolk Superior Court.

Appearing today with former Dist. Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien, as his counsel, Ware was asked by Atty. Young:

"Why try to call the court anything other than why you failed to answer questions?"

"Because those questions which have arisen as part of my bankruptcy proceedings," replied Ware, "I would be glad to answer questions put to me with regard to the bankruptcy."

"I am sorry, Mr. Ware, but I will have to order you in contempt and confine you in Charles st. jail until such time as you answer the questions put to you by the referee," said Judge Lowell.

SHATTUCK ART RING VICTIM, IS REPORT

Harvard Treasurer Said to Have Lost $30,000; Dealers Aid Probe; Cooke Trailed

A report that Representative Henry L. Shattuck, treasurer of Harvard University, was victimized by the art swindle ring to the extent of $30,000 was a highlight of the investigation today.

Shattuck, member of one of Boston's "first families," refused either to confirm or deny the report, but admitted that he had been in conference with Dist. Atty. Foley regarding the operations of the ring.

There was another report in the [illegible] that one of the [illegible] had been approached by members of the ring and asked to pay $30,000 for a painting, which he discovered to be a [illegible] copy.

Another [illegible] the [illegible] investigation was [illegible] an oil painting of George Washington in the office of the district attorney. Out of it tumbled proof of how the multi-million dollar ring profited $27,700 on the sale of a single bogus old master.

The painting was sold in Boston

COAST GUARD GETS BOAT IN SHARP FIGHT

Montauk Point Chase Ends In Capture of 13; Second Boat Trapped

New London, Ct., Oct. 24—Coastguard one-pounders and machine-guns sent one rum-runner to the bottom of Little Narragansett Bay today and a second boat was captured, all after a wild chase from Montauk Point, across Block Island Sound to Stonington.

Coastguard took into custody 13 men who were aboard the two rum runners and towed the captured craft to New London.

The rum runner sunk by her crew of four were attempting to reach Watch Hill Point shore, just outside Stonington Harbor, was the Helen of Newport, and she carried approximately 1000 cases of liquor, valued conservatively at $60,000.

U. S. BOATS IN CHASE

The chase of the two craft, the other being the Pueblos, engaged at least eight coastguard boats at one time or another.

It began off Montauk Point, L. I., when the patrol boat CG-134 and CG-234 sighted the Helen and fired on her when she refused to halt.

Nearer the Connecticut shore the patrol boats CG-236 and CG-148 heard the firing and followed the sound as the chase started.

The chase led toward Stonington Harbor, with the coast guard boats, using flares and searchlights, converged on that point.

Much swifter, however, the Helen kept her lead until she reached a point in Little Narragansett Bay, when her skipper changed his course toward Watch Hill in the East, instead of continuing toward Stonington Harbor.

Then the coast guard boats sighted the Pueblos—long, low and cut on the lines of the patrol boats themselves.

RUSE THAT FAILED.

It was an old ruse the Pueblos tried then, but this time it did not succeed. The Pueblos cut across in front of the Helen and dashed for the harbor.

In past pursuits, Coast Guard patrols have frequently been hoaxed in this fashion, the empty craft racing for an apparent landing place and drawing the Coast Guard in pursuit, while the loaded boat escapes.

This time the patrol boats picked out a fugitive craft, the CG-134 trailing the Helen and the CG-234 following the Pueblos.

MACHINE GUNS SPATTER

More than 500 machine gun bullets were spattered on the Helen, some of them peppering tenantless summer cottages along the rim of the bay, and 40 shots were sent over from the patrol boat's one-pounder.

When almost to the shore, the Helen suddenly reversed and went beneath the surface with many holes in her hull.

Her crew of four leaped into the water and gained the shore, but were captured, either by the patrol coast guards or land coast guards, at the Watch Hill station, who had been aroused by the sounds of the guns.

The pilot house of the Helen was well pierced with machine gun bullets and a one-pounder stove a hole in the hull, it was learned.

At low water the Helen was patched and later was towed to New London with her cargo of liquor.

Housewives Lead in Odd Job Offers

(Have you an odd job to be done? Call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8007, or mail the attached coupon.)

Hearts of women especially have been touched by the plight of the unemployed.

They have realized the need for odd jobs, such as cleaning, repairing, painting, as long as nothing better is available.

The larger share of the credit thus far is due them for the temporary relief being given in increasing amount each day to hundreds applying for work at the Municipal Employment Bureau.

There cannot be enough offers of such work, but Director Shields of the employment office is highly pleased with the response to the suggestion of the Boston Evening American for odd jobs.

The appeal is for odd jobs, a little work, even if only for a day or a few days, for the unemployed and needy.

COST IS SMALL

Think of it! If all the people in Greater Boston who need their yards or cellars cleaned up, or some little painting or repair work done —screens taken down, windows washed, fires started—employed men to do it now, the benefit to the unemployed would be great.

The cost to each householder or property owner would be very small, yet the expense would not be charity. These men and women out of work ask, not charity, but work.

More than 300 men and 100 women were at the doors of the unemployment bureau on Church st.

Brazil Falls to Rebels; President Resigns Post

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 24 (AP)—The government of President Washington Luis, which for three weeks has been fighting a widespread revolutionary movement in Brazil, was overthrown today and the President resigned.

The blow which overthrew the administration was struck by a group of army and navy officers in Rio de Janeiro itself, a provisional headquarters being set up and a proclamation being issued to all Brazilians to end civil warfare in progress and to establish peace again.

After his resignation Luis gave himself up to Gen. Asevedo, who made himself responsible for the former President's safety.

Reports from Sao Paulo, stronghold of the Luis political coup, indicated Dr. Julio Prestes, President-elect, would quit the field.

It appeared shortly before noon that there would be a provisional government within a few hours, headed by Gen Menna Barreto, chief of the civil-military committee, which asked the resignation of the president early this morning.

Dispatches said the rebels had fired on the governor's palace at Sao Paulo, last federal stronghold, and that it had hoisted a white flag.

The coup which overthrew the government had not been expected in political circles for another week with the possibility that the president might have been given opportunity to finish his term, which ends Nov. 15.

However, shortly after midnight the military police and some troops were rushed to Guanabara palace, the presidential residence, and diverted all traffic to Copacabana and other suburbs in that direction.

HOME BREWING RULED ILLEGAL

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 24 (INS)—Home brewers are law violators.

That was the word today from Amos W. W. Woodcock, federal prohibition director, who inspected Indianapolis enforcement units and conferred with Federal Judge Baltzell and Dist. Atty. Jeffrey today.

"Any person who makes beverage of more than one and one-half per cent alcoholic content is violating the law," Woodcock said. "But it is difficult for prohibition agents to convict a man who merely brews for home use.

"I say again that the prohibition department should concentrate on those who commercialize on the prohibition law—the bootleggers, distillers and rum runners are the only ones we can expect to catch and convict."

Parrish, Style Expert, Sees Buying Revival Near

Fashion is what people want and the seller agrees that fashion is that which sells. Amos Parrish, internationally known stylist told 300 department store heads, merchandisers, buyers and stylists today at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon given by the Retail Trade Board.

He urged the coupling of good advertising with fast selling fashions and stressed the need for business men "to stop crying and go to work now."

"People now want, and certainly get, a lot for their money," he said, "and from now on the battle will go to the selling-strong.

"This is the best time in years to test the sound business thinking ability of business men—a sad time for those who blow and a fine time for those who know and rightly use what they know."

Garrett Tip Sends Police to Allston on Wild Chase

Police inspectors raced out to Allston late this afternoon on a new hunt for Oliver B. Garrett when they learned that a prescription for a cold cure, originally issued to Garrett, had been presented at an Allston pharmacy to be refilled.

The inspectors, George Augusta and William LeBlanc, discovered in Allston that a woman, known to be a close friend of the Garretts, had presented the prescription.

She was accompanied by a small child when she visited the drug-store.

It was the first local clue to the possible whereabouts of Garrett since last August when his name was mentioned in connection with the slaying of a policeman in Portland. Nothing ever came of the Portland investigation, however.

After hunting around Allston on the pharmacy information the detectives were told that a man believed to be Garrett was living in Roxbury under an assumed name.

The inspectors found the man named, but he proved that he was not Garrett and had been living at the address with his wife for a year.

PATROL CREW RESCUE MAN IN HARBOR

U. S. Craft Is Hit by Motor Boat Leaving Boston Base for Sea Duty

A 30-foot motorboat was sunk off East Boston today when it collided with Coast Guard patrol boat SG-278 as the latter was leaving its base for sea duty.

Justin Avellar of 163 Hemenway st., Back Bay, the only occupant of the motorboat, was rescued by the crew of the patrol boat in charge of Chief Boatswain's Mate Elmer Purdy.

According to Coast Guard officials, the small craft hit the patrol boat "abaft of the beam," side on and sank after a line was thrown aboard to tow her in.

The motorboat was owned by the Fiscl Oil Co., and was used for transprotation of small lots of oil about the harbor. Avellar was taken into the Coast Guard base none the worse for his experience.

Jews resign positions in Zionism as a protest.

Dr. Holmes, clergyman of the Community Church in New York, urges Palestine Jews to unite with the Arabs in a war of passive resistance against the British government along the lines of Gandhi's passive resistance in India.

But conditions are different. In India Gandhi resists tax collection.

In Palestine, the British don't collect, they spend millions a year on their mandate, keeping Arabs from murdering Jews. A combination of Arabs and Jews for passive resistance might persuade Britain's Labor government to drop the mandate and say "run the country yourselves."

With Arabs outnumbering Jews ten to one that would be dangerous.

George L. Cassidy, known to many a "dry" congressman as "the man in the green hat," has decided to write his memoirs for the past ten years.

What he writes will not please some congressmen. The man in the green hat has been bootlegger-in-chief to members of Congress. He declares that "a majority of both Houses" depended on him for their bootleg supplies. And they drank it under the dome of the Capitol.

Shattuck Is Reported as Art Victim for $30,000 in December, 1927, by William C. Loring, art collector and brother of Homer Loring, noted Boston attorney, to William Wilbur J. Cooke for $30,000.

Cooke, sought as the leader of a trio under indictment in the art conspiracies, sold it in Buffalo in June, 1928, to Seymour H. Knox, millionaire collector, for $36,000.

The Buffalo sale was made through Arthur M. Hekking, director of the Albright Art Gallery of that city. Cooke is alleged to have misrepresented the canvas as one by Gilbert Stuart. Loring, who knew its true value, had identified it as a Jane Stuart, of comparatively small worth.

ON COOKE'S TRAIL

Hekking, who is co-operating with the district attorney, arrived in Boston with the canvas this morning. Loring supplied the frame from which it was taken when it was sold to Cooke.

It was fitted into the frame and the nail holes in the canvas plumbed in every instance with the nail holes in the old frame, thus proving the $30,000 "treasure" by Gilbert Stuart to be the $300 Jane Stuart canvas.

There was an unconfirmed report that this picture was originally purchased in Boston for only $12.

So the search for Cooke and Mrs. Caroline S. S. Saunders, indicted with Mrs. Clementine Briggs Doran of Holyoke in the $50,000 china transaction by which Clinton J. Nash was victimized, was widened and Inspector Warren Liese was sent to New York and Philadelphia to conduct the hunt.

Counsel for Mrs. Doran were among the many visitors at the district attorney's office in connection with the inquiry. Her attorneys, Frank Hurley and Richard Stapleton, called regarding a possible reduction in the $20,000 bail, for lack of which she is held in jail.

HOW COOKE "WORKED"

The district attorney's office today assumed the aspect of a clearing house for a national investigation of the art swindle ring with new victims appearing almost hourly.

Only one of the many cases brought to light so far comes within Suffolk County jurisdiction. And, just, Atty. Frederick T. Doyle said. The inquiry will continue, however, and its ramifications in other counties and states will be made known by Foley to authorities who have jurisdiction.

Edward F. Floran, Stuart st., antique dealer, examined by Foley and Doyle, said Cooke and Mrs. Doran went to his shop last March to purchase expensive car driven by a chauffeur. Mrs. Doran was introduced by Cooke, as Mrs. Briggs, his secretary, and did most of the talking, Cloran said.

The couple took him to a hotel where they introduced him to an elderly woman dressed in black, who, he said, was probably Mrs. Saunders.

Cloran said Cooke and Mrs. Briggs told him they knew where he could get some china on which he could make a lot of money. He said Mrs. Saunders posed as a member of the Van Rensselaer family of New York, owners of rare china. Cloran quoted her as saying she did not want to dispose of the china in New York for fear her friends would learn of it.

Frank W. Bayley of the Copley Art Gallery also was examined in regard to the sale of the spurious Stuart's Washington to Edwin S. Webster of Stone & Webster for $32,500, later refunding the money.

FAKES IN BUFFALO

Bayley told the district attorney he paid $700 for the picture and supposed it to be genuine, purchasing it from a dealer named McBeth in New York.

Hekking, of the Albright Art Gallery in Buffalo, said that Mrs. Knox, a director of the gallery, bought ten paintings from Cooke for $44,000, which were later discovered to be spurious.

He told the authorities Cooke held a private exhibition in Buffalo of about 37 paintings, only two of which were genuine. The other 35 are still awaiting Cooke's instructions at Buffalo.

Crowninshield is the china expert, consin of Henry du Pont, who revealed Boston and New York gallery fakes and aided police in tracing the source of the fake set sold to Nash.

The Boston and Kansas City Museums of Fine Arts were victimized to the extent of more than $1,105,000, the investigation indicates.

Mrs. Frances Nicholls, Andover society woman who was duped into paying large sums for bogus china, will also be questioned.

The Boston Museum dupes were exposed through the questioning of Herbert E. Thompson, the connoisseur who has assisted in the selection of old masters at the local institution.

Ralph J. Holmes, millionaire director of the museum, grandson of Oliver Wendell Holmes and nephew of Supreme Court Justice Holmes, paid $35,000 for two fake Cima del Conegliano paintings of saints which he found in the gallery of one of the most reputable collectors in Italy.

MUSEUM WAS DECEIVED

They were found to be spurious before they were hung and were returned. From a same source came a Velasquez oil, "Portrait of a Man," for a price said to have been $95,000.

This painting hung on the museum walls for two months before a visiting Italian critic questioned its authenticity and it was removed.

The Kansas City Museum, which has a $6,000,000 fund for the purchase of rare paintings, has paid within the last year approximately $1,000,000 for bogus pieces of art, it is said.

$450,000,000 in Work Up to Voters in 20 States

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Col. Arthur Woods, government unemployment relief director, said today that approval of public works proposals totaling approximately $450,000,000 to be voted on in about 20 states in November would result in stimulation of industry and go far toward relieving unemployment.

These issues, Col. Woods said, are for varying activities, and in his opinion the bond market was favorable for such issues.

Nine states, he said, have before them issues aggregating $200,000,000, and cities, counties or special districts have issues totaling $146,000,000. Col. Woods said he could not consistently give a blanket recommendation as to the soundness of each bond proposal.

DUNHAM TOLD 50 PCT. 'CUT' WAS FAIR

Page & Shaw Head Says He Took Up Stock Sale Deal With Brokers

Otis Emerson Dunham, president of Page & Shaw, Inc., testified today in Middlesex Superior Court that he was told that 50 per cent commission for the brokers was a fair and reasonable allowance for them in the marketing of the new stock of the candy company.

He said that Isaac Hart and Joseph Pollay, the broker who handled the stock sales, told him this when he protested that it seemed rather high.

Dunham, Hart, Pollay and nine others are on trial for conspiracy in connection with the stock issue.

"Hart said 50 per cent was reasonable because of the advertising value of the stock issue and because the brokerage expense had to be deducted," testified Dunham.

He told of talking with Hart and Pollay and agreeing, after some discussion, that two pounds of candy would be given with every share of stock sold on the first approach of the public, the aim of which was simply to get names for larger additional sales.

Dunham said that after taking with Hart and Pollay on this occasion, which was his second interview with them, he called off negotiations for a merger under the terms of which Page & Shaw would have been sold for $2,500,000.

He further testified that on July 29, 1929, Hart and Pollay told him the issue would be $2,000,000, that the brokers would get half of that and that 100,000 shares would be placed in the company's treasury.

Meanwhile, he said, Raymond Holland (also a defendant in the present trial) had been introduced to him by Hart and Pollay as a man whose connection would be beneficial to the company's business. Early in August, Dunham said Holland a half interest in all four Page & Shaw companies for $400,000, of which $125,000 was paid in cash, the rest in notes.

Dunham said he had an offer of $500,000 from New York bankers for the goodwill of the company, which would leave him all physical assets, but he declined it because he considered it unethical to cut off negotiation with Hart and Pollay.

Old-Time Artist

ROBERT W. CHANLER, a generation ago widely known as an artist, and husband of Lina Cavallieri, died today at his summer home in Woodstock, N. Y.

R. W. CHANLER, ARTIST, DEAD

Woodstock, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP)—Robert Winthrop Chanler, noted artist and former husband of Lina Cavalieri, opera singer, died early this morning after a long illness. He had been in a coma for 12 hours.

For weeks he had been confined to his summer home here under the constant care of physicians for a heart affliction. His condition was so low that plans to take him to New York City for further treatment were forestalled.

Robert Winthrop Chanler was a descendant of both Gov. Winthrop of Massachusetts and Peter Stuyvesant, the last Dutch governor of New York. Born 57 years ago, he ignored his family, who wanted him to follow a political career, and turned to the study of art.

His first European study was in the sculpture classes of Mariano Benllure at Rome, but after a time he turned to painting and took a studio in Paris.

His interest in politics revived, however, upon his return to America and he became a member of Tammany Hall and eventually sheriff of Dutchess county.

Mr. Chanler was twice married and twice divorced. Lina Cavalieri was his second wife.

PRIESTS BEATEN BY CHINESE RED CAPTORS

Missionary Seeking Ransom Fund Relates Tale of Torture by Communist Band

Shanghai, Oct. 24 (AP)—A first-hand account of the massacre at Kian and the kidnaping and torture of Catholic missionaries there was related here today by the Rev. Fr. de Jenlis, French priest, who estimated the number slain at 2000.

Father De Jenlis and the Italian Bishop Magnani, of the Lazarist Mission at Kian, were among the 18 missionaries kidnaped when Communists overran the Central Kiangsi Province city October 5. The bishop and the French priest were released and sent to Kiukiang t o carry the demand of the Reds for ransom money amounting to $10,000,000 Mexican ($3,500,000 American money).

As the result of beatings at the hands of Reds who used strips of iron to inflict torture, Bishop Magnani was unable to relate his experiences. Father De Jenlis related how the Reds overran the city.

The 14 captured missionaries, he said, were being well treated when he and Bishop Magnani left, with the exception of one Chinese priest who was killed "because he was a Christian." Bishop Magnani and another French priest now held at Kian were bound and beaten, said Father De Jenlis, "because they were imperialists."

BREWSTER RAPS PENN. G. O. P.

Easton, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP)—Ralph O. Brewster, former governor of Maine, in a speech at Lafayette College today, asserted radicals of the country were not furnished an inspiring example by some Republican regulars of the Keystone state.

"Party ties are in dissolution, north and south and east and west. A new order dawneth when Republican ascendency in Pennsylvania is brought at all in doubt," he said.

Referring to former Governor Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania gubernatorial candidate, from whose support Philadelphia leaders have bolted, Mr. Brewster asked:

"Who Is Pinchot not a Republican? Is it because he was nominated by a Republican primary? Is it because he refused to sign qualified certificate to one whom a Republican Senate refused a seat? Is it because he has refused to bend a suppliant knee to vast willful interests? Is it because he is a dry?

"The nation is not concerned with the personal fortunes of an individual nor even with the selection of a governor of the Keystone State, but rather with the principles that are involved and with the allegiances that are revealed."

PAUL REVERE OF DRYS GETS WET

Without the "one if by land and two if by sea," Paul Revere—very dry—got wet today when he started from North sq. to spread the alarm "through every Middlesex village and town" that the Baby Volstead Act is in danger of crumbling.

It rained on Paul but it didn't deter him from starting the trek for the Women's Law Enforcement League of Massachusetts to spread printed alarms against voting wet.

No bell ringing or other excitement at historic Old North Church sent him on his way, but a group of league executive committee members gathered to speed the messenger on his way.

His identity was kept secret and his start was shifted to Paul Revere House when the Rev. Francis E. Webster, pastor of Old North Church, forbade any demonstration there.

Spanish Flier Jailed for Attempted Ocean Hop

Madrid, Oct. 24—Maj. Ramon Franco, whose attempt to fly the Atlantic ocean last year almost resulted in death when he and three companions were forced down on the sea, to be rescued by a British warship, was today sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

Maj. Franco

The specific charge upon which the airman was convicted was that he engaged in "subversive activities." His sensational rescue, after being given up for lost, was followed by an investigation which tended to show that he and his companions took off on their flight without the necessary permission.

Lois Moran Will Take Courses at Columbia

New York, Oct. 24—Lois Moran, film beauty, arrived here today from Hollywood to enroll at Columbia University. The dainty actress is planning to take courses in political economy, psychology, philosophy and Spanish.

Pretender Despairs of Gaining Spain's Crown

Paris, Oct. 24—James of Bourbon, pretender to the Spanish throne, today sees little hope of gaining the crown of King Alfonso. But James is not averse to seeing the present monarch unseated by the establishment of another monarch.

James of Bourbon

James plans to place himself at the service of the Spanish republicans should such a coup be made, according to his secretary. From his refuge here, the Pretender fought bitterly against the late Spanish dictatorship, because of a dislike of Primo de Rivera's tactics and the feeling that first Spain must improve the lot of the working class.

CURLEY URGES CHAMBER TO ADOPT AMERICAN'S JOBLESS PLAN

MALDEN AND WALTHAM JOIN MOVE

Mayors Hastings and Duane Hail Municipal Bureau as Timely and Meritorious

President Henry I. Harriman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, which was the first civic organization to endorse the Boston Evening American's suggestion to give odd jobs to the needy was asked today by Mayor Curley to urge all concerns, members of the Chamber of Commerce, to co-operate.

Carl Dreyfus, City Hospital trustee, who announced that several hospital development projects were being started earlier than planned, in order to aid the unemployed, is a vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mayors Patrick J. Duane of Waltham and William A. Hastings of Malden today both heartily endorsed the suggestion, and the former issued a proclamation asking all citizens of Waltham to look for odd jobs, large or small, that the unemployed might do.

Mayor Curley's letter to President Harriman follows:

"My dear Mr. Harriman:

"The approach of a typical New England winter has never before perhaps in the history of Boston, been anticipated with more dread on the part of the unemployed and their dependents.

AID NEEDED

"In order to cope with this situation, the necessity for concerted action on the part of all is obvious and the assistance of the Boston Chamber of Commerce would be a potent factor in a movement to provide employment for as many persons as possible during the next six months.

"For the past eight years the City of Boston has maintained a Municipal Employment Bureau, the facilities of which have been placed at the disposal of both employers and unemployed without charge. This year, due to the Industrial depression, the demands on the bureau have necessarily been many.

"May I ask that, through your member concerns, you urge the necessity of utilizing the facilities of the Municipal Employment Bureau at 38 Church st. in the matter of furnishing employment for as many men and women as possible during the coming winter?

"Employment, whether it be a matter of days or weeks, would, under present conditions, go far to bring hope and cheer into the hearts and homes of many worthy citizens of Boston."

Mayor Duane of Waltham wrote to the Boston Evening American as follows:

"I am in hearty accord with your program of securing work for the unemployed through your Odd Job Plan and by proclamation I am calling upon the citizens of Waltham, especially property owners, to search out all small and large jobs and have needed repairs and alterations made NOW.

MERITORIOUS PLAN

"On its very face, it is a meritorious plan, and ought to provide immediate relief.

"Waltham, during the past winter and spring, did much sewer and water main construction work, much work has been given of a temporary character to people that could not obtain employment under civil service rules.

"I feel that this is not only good business from the foundation of giving men with families a chance to work, rather than sending them to the relief department of the city.

"It is also humane work and encourages self-respect among laborers and family men of the community.

"In our free employment bureau of the Chamber of Commerce we have an organization ready to function.

"I am asking our citizens to apply to that bureau for the needed help to bring about the employment of men who need odd job work, as advocated by the Boston American.

"This is certainly God's work, and your are to be commended for the spirit manifested."

MALDEN TO AID

From Malden chief executive the following message was received:

Editor, Boston American:

"I wish to commend your plan for the alleviation of the unemployment situation which is so acute throughout the country. You are to be heartily thanked for initiating an idea which should succeed.

"I am very much interested in your coupon plan and will cooperate with you to the fullest extent. My office at City Hall (Phone Malden 0090) is at your service and local returns will receive my personal attention."

GIANT PLANE TO HOP TUESDAY

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Special Cable Dispatch

(Copyright, 1930, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 24—The DO-X will be all clear on Tuesday morning for the takeoff from Lake Constance on the first leg of the flight to Lisbon, from which the transatlantic hop to New York will begin."

This was the statement last night of Capt. Christian Christiansen, master of the Dornier flyingboat, on his return from Hamburg, where he has been in consultation with the Seewarte, chief German Atlantic weather station. Capt. Christiansen said:

"With everything ready on Tuesday, our start from here will then depend solely on the weather. We will hop when the cloud ceiling is high enough and the visibility down the Rhine to Holland good enough."

Because of an announcement by the German postal ministry that mail for the DO-X flight would be accepted up until November 8 came the mistaken conclusion that the monster flying ship would remain here until then.

The DO-X is carrying no mail from Friedrichshafen, since the mail for the transatlantic passage will be assembled here up until November 8 and then taken to Lisbon on a special plane after the DO-X has left Southampton, England.

Women Lead in Offers of Jobs to Needy

at opening time Thursday. They couldn't all get in, and those who had to wait outside, lined up across the street—in the sun, for they were cold.

An invisible host stood there with them, plain as day to the thoughtful and kinhearted, the host of those at home, the cold and hungry dependents of those waiting there.

OFFER A HOME

Meanwhile, in various parts of the city and suburbs, readers of the Boston Evening American had been thinking of odd jobs that might be done by these unfortunates.

How many little jobs there were to be thought of by those who took the time to think!

Seventy-eight telephoned to the bureau promptly, 94 men, women and girls went out to work, nearly twice as many as on the first day.

Trained office workers in large numbers were not so fortunate, and these Director Shields would like to place.

Three incidents helped reveal the spirit impelling those who responded to the call for work. These were aside from the actual granting of work but they revealed kind hearts.

A Mattapan couple offered to relieve the burden of a large family by taking in a child eight or ten years old, promising to give parentar love and care.

A mother, also living in Mattapan, offered a baby's crib complete.

A North Weymouth woman who sent for a man to do odd jobs hired another while the man the bureau sent was on his way. But she fed him when he arrived, paid his carfare and gave him a day's wages.

CALL PLUMBER

A West Roxbury mother with five in her own family hired a mother's helper at a regular weekly wage and room and board, and another woman was engaged for similar work by a resident of Ruthven st., Roxbury. A woman went to mend and sew for another Roxbury resident.

Men were employed in Boston and the suburbs on various odd jobs, and also as woodworkers, tailors, plumbers. A tote call was received at the bureau after closing time for a master plumber.

Action of the City Hospital trustees in putting 106 men to work, as announced by Carl Dreyfus, philanthropist and member of the board of trustees, was warmly applauded by Director Shields and other city officials.

The directors urged the employment of the trained office workers on his lists, including bookkeepers, stenographers, business machine operators, switchboard girls, and also employment of elevator operators, restaurant and hotel help and factory workers of all kinds, duly trained.

If you have an odd job to be done, call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8807, or if you prefer mail the attached coupon.

PARRISH TELLS WHAT STYLE IS

"headache," Mr. Parrish said in an interview with the Boston Evening American.

"Comfortable homes are still in fashion—long as they are comfortable," he said.

"And it is still in fashion to want happiness and to get it—

"It is in fashion for people to want to be comfortably dressed and attractively dressed.

"People are still going to movies when the movies are good—

"They are still going to football games when the games are good—

"They are still interested in their homes when their homes are full of good natured folks—

"In Boston they have more money in the bank than they had last year by many many million dollars—

"In fact, Massachusetts has more than $61,000,000 more in the bank now than it had a year ago.

"Business has not all gone to pot. It has a headache—the natural result of a too vigorous business party the night before. It will get over its headache. It is beginning to, already.

"One way to get business sounder quickly is not to have so much sound about its not being right. It will get right as quickly as people begin to think straight about it.

"People today are more cautious in their buying than they have been for several years. But they will buy those things they want when they are attractively put before them—

"If Mrs. Boston, Mrs. New York and Mrs. Chicago and Mrs. Everybody in the country—because the 'Mrs.' is the boss of the pocketbook—would take some money out of the bank, or out of her stocking, if you please, and buy a couple of pairs of extra stockings and an extra hat or so, and shoes, and chairs—things could not help but perk up, and perk up they will because people are just about ready to buy more.

"Comparing Boston stores with other stores in America, one can certainly say that Boston shoppers are indeed fortunate because they have some great stores here who understand what people want, and surely have it ready for them.

"Successful businesses are like successful people. In studying them we find they have a great many things in common. Here are some things that are good business for people and businesses to agree on. If they do agree on these things—and they apply to all businesses and all people—they will have more fun at business, more quickly than they are now."

The text in full of Amos Parrish's speech before the Retail Trade Board will be printed tomorrow in all editions of the Boston Evening American.

It contains some interesting views on the styles of today and his opinions on business methods to exploit the styles.

Newlyborn Roxbury Baby Has 12 Fingers, 11 Toes

They were generous to a new baby boy in Roxbury before the stork brought him to Mr. and Mrs. James O. Tennant of 4 Dana pl. yesterday.

Like his 11-year-old brother, Fred the new baby was equipped with an extra finger on each hand and an extra toe on the left foot. The same condition has held through seven generations on the mother's side, according to a member of the family who said the doctor at Fred's birth had carefully checked back through the family records. An average of one out of every three children born on that side of the family had extra digits he found.

When the new baby grows up, however, hands and feet will be normal for just as surgeons did to Fred they will do to his brother, remove the extra fingers and toe, two weeks hence.

There is an extra finger outside each normal little finger, growing of the same back joint, at a slight angle.

The baby weighed 11 pounds at birth and was normal in every particular except that of the added digits.

Six unemployed youths were sent to report to Miss Sears at the Garden. They will be paid a daily wage and will receive tips in addition, she told John J. Shields, head of the city's employment office.

SCHWAB VISIONS GREATEST OF PROSPERITY

No "Basic Structural Failure" Revealed, Says Magnate; Steel Will Lead

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, told the American Iron and Steel Institute today that because the past year had revealed no "basic structural failure," in the economic foundation, he believed business revival would bring to America "a larger measure of prosperity than the American people ever have known before."

In his address as president of the institute at its semi-annual meeting, Schwab said the steel industry would "lead the march to prosperity," although the task was one requiring staying power, vision and hard work.

"We are not concerned with the cross currents of what I would call 'short-term pessimism,'" he asserted. "Nor are we overanxious about the exact date when orders will pile up on our doorsteps. Ours is a business that deals in the fundamentals of material civilization and in the essentials of human advancement."

PRICE TONE BETTER

Schwab maintained there was a better tone to prices, that the markets for steel were expanding, both in familiar fields and in new uses, and that production had been stabilized.

"But," he added, "I want to sound again the warning note which I have mentioned in the past: 'That if we plunge headlong into a program of unreasonable expansion only one thing will result—overproduction.'

"We cannot afford to squander our resources again by price-cutting below the profit line, or by over-production beyond the demand line."

Schwab pointed out the industry's decision at the last institute meeting not to cut wages had been maintained.

"Business men generally," he said, "have refused to be stampeded into following the vicious wage slashing practice of former periods of business recession. They have now recognized the retention of wage scales would hasten return to prosperity.

RELAXATION OF MARKET

Discussing the relation of the stock market to current conditions, Schwab said:

"If we look through a plain, clear pair of spectacles we will see the widespread ownership of securities rests primarily with investors and represents partnership in the great industrial enterprises of the country. The share of the investor in the ownership of enterprises is not changed in its relative values."

The steel industry, he asserted, was producing about 40,000,000 tons in 1930, or at a rate within five per cent of the average output for the last 10 years.

Holdup Man Caught, Signs to Pay Back in Instalments

Minneapolis, Oct. 24 (AP)—The installment idea appealed to Andrew Drew, a real estate broker. Meeting the young gunman who held him up last September, Drew demanded return of the $1125 he had handed over, on threat of informing the police.

The robber was willing, but this money was spent. Drew thought of installments, so they made a deal whereby the robber is to pay back $30 per month.

CIVIC LEAGUE LISTS 'DRYS' IN WARNING

In its campaign for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the Liberal Civic League today urged the defeat of all "dry" candidates for Congress.

The league gives the views of the candidates of both parties. A similar analysis with respect to candidates for senator, governor and lieutenant governor, the league says, will be issued shortly.

"FALSE CLAIM"

"It is of the utmost importance that the tremendous majority for repeal i. the referendum of 1928 music not fall of its objective in the coming election on Nov. 4, and that the voters should not be diverted from direct action by the entirely false claim that repeal sentiment can best be expressed by voting for the repeal of the Baby Volstead Law, the League states.

"While the repeal of the Baby Volstead law is a natural reaction of public sentiment in Massachusetts, its accomplishment will not and of itself put a vote in Congress for the repeal of the amendment that is the basic cause of the prohibition menace.

CALL REPUBLICANS

"If Massachusetts is to be generally represented upon this question in Congress during the next two years, then it is up to the voters of the several districts to see to it that there are no blanks on the Congressional question and that only men who stand fairly and squarely for repeal are elected this year"

The league urges the defeat of these candidates, listed as "drys" or as unsatisfactory on repeal:

Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge.
Joshua L. Brooks of Springfield.
Frank H. Foss of Fitchburg.
Edith N. Rogers of Lowell.
Charles W. Lovett.
Frederick W. Dallinger of Cambridge.
Charles L. Underhill of Somerville.
Samuel Abrams of Boston.
Robert Luce of Waltham.
Richard B. Wigglesworth of Milton.
Joseph W. Martin of Sarin borough.
Charles L. Gifford of Barnstable.

In every instance the candidate is on the Republican ticket. The majority are sitting Congressmen.

INSULL FORCE TO AID NEEDY

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Dollars from the pay checks of officers and employes of the Insull utility companies promised today a potent fund to fight distress during the winter months.

Samuel Insull, head of the group, announced that one day's pay a month for six months would be given in voluntary contributions by the entire personnel of his organization.

It is estimated that the gift will amount to more than $100,000 per month.

'Champion' Rum Maker in Plea for 'Temperance'

Haverhill, Oct. 24—For a solution of the prohibition and unemployment problems, Daniel G. Tenney, 77-year-old self-proclaimed "champion rum maker," today proposed that he be permitted legally to manufacture and sell his product.

Tenny once offered to go into partnership with the City Council in the distilling business. He promises to use his profits for good works, and says his rum would bring real temperance.

He says he would sell it for 20 cents a drink, as compared to 35 and 50 cents that some bootleggers charge for "poison."

In a long statement, Tenney, whose activities have been handicapped recently by a stay in Lawrence jail for liquor law violations, asserts his plan would drive bootleggers out of business and end unemployment.

He would make the city and state sharers in his profits, which he figures would amount to $24,950 a year.

"We are on the verge of an election," says Tenney, "and the voters are going to declare whether they want to continue under the prohibition law now in effect long enough to convince the public that with all the millions of the taxpayers' money spent to enforce it, conditions are more deplorable than ever."

DRYS SEEK AID OF N. E. WOMEN

Springfield, Oct. 24 (AP)—A call to the women of the Methodist Church to voice support of prohibition, law enforcement and world peace was sounded by Mrs. W. F. Anderson, wife of the Bishop of the New England area, in the opening business session today of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church.

Delegates from all parts of the world were aroused to enthusiasm by the report of the treasurer, Miss Florence Hooper, that in the face of prevailing business conditions the society closes the year with all debts paid, total collections for the year ending Oct. 3 of $2,396,073, endowment on retirement fund of $947,127, and $187,824 in annuity gifts.

Mrs. Everett O. Fisk of Boston, welcoming the delegates as president of the New England branch, mentioned the spiritualizing influence exercised by the missionaries returning to an America beset by materialism.

Disguise Fails to Shield Postoffice Suicide Thief

Cleveland, O. Oct 24 (AP)—The oblivion he sought in death was denied to Otto P. Schilling, former Lakewood postoffice superintendent, who returned from Atlanta Penitentiary to end his life at the place where he confessed taking $400 in postal funds to buy flowers for his home garden.

Schilling, 52, smashed in a door to the Lakewood postoffice Wednesday night, found two old revolvers and with one of them fired a bullet into his head.

The beard he had grown since being released from Atlanta hid his identity. But after lying unidentified at the morgue for 24 hours, his body was claimed by his nephew.

Store Clerks, Attention

"For two years I suffered with irregularities and finally had to leave school. I got no relief until my married sister told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking only two bottles I felt well. Since then I have been able to clerk in a store, on my feet all day and have suffered only once from my old trouble. I want other girls, especially store clerks, to know what it did for me."—Dorothy L. Fairchild, 924 Walnut Street, Freeland, Pennsylvania.

ALLEN AND ELY BEAR BRUNT OF CAMPAIGN

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Governor Frank G. Allen and his Democratic opponent, Joseph B. Ely, are bearing the oratorical burden in the Massachusetts election campaign.

Without the efforts of these two candidates, it is agreed in political circles, the campaign would be a lifeless affair when compared with the recent exciting primary.

Governor Allen's "failure" to solve the Boston Elevated problem was again attacked by Ely at a reception given him last night in the Hotel Westminster by the City-for-Governor Women's Club of Greater Boston.

ACHIEVEMENTS "ROUTINE"

Ely also addressed rallies in Quincy, Brockton, Whitman, Rockland, Attleboro and North Attleboro.

To the women at the Westminster, Mr. Ely contended the accomplishments claimed by Mr. Allen, such as taxes, institution building, better roads, were all of a routine nature, started before he became governor.

"They required no leadership," Ely stated.

At the Lowell rally, Thomas C. O'Brien, former district attorney of Suffolk, and one of the candidates who lost out in the senatorial primary, with Senator David I. Walsh, Congressman John W. McCormack and Dist. Atty. Foley, advanced the interests of the Democratic candidates.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald held forth at Lawrence.

Over the radio, Governor Allen declared that he does not believe that the electorate will place the affairs of the state in "inexperienced hands" in this present serious economic situation.

BOOSTS BUTLER

The Governor said the issues are clear cut and well defined and cannot be obscured "by the smoke which is so characteristic of political campaigns and to which my opponent resorts."

For the first time since the election campaign opened, the Governor mentioned his running mate, William M. Butler. He praised the senatorial candidate and urged his election.

Marcus A. Coolidge, Democratic candidate for senator, at rallies in Brockton and surrounding communities, demanded that William M. Butler, his opponent, make public a list of his investments in the bonds and stock of corporations so that it may be seen whether these investments are confined to Massachusetts.

Lawyer Held in $1000 Note Theft

Worcester, Oct. 24—Carl H. L. Bock, an attorney, was held in bonds of $1000 for the grand jury today on a charge of larceny of $1000 from Mrs. Ellen L. Whitney of Chicago and Worcester. Mrs. Witting told the court Bock used a mortgage note of her mother's estate to procure a loan for his own use.

High Heels Defended as Eliminator of Flat Feet

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 24 (AP)—High heels which have kicked up a lot of discussion, pro and con, have found a staunch defender in Dr. Fraser B. Gurd of McGill University Medical School, Montreal.

The elevated heel, he told practitioners attending the international medical assembly, not only eliminates the curse of flat feet, but prevents the wearer from fracturing her ankle in case of a fall.

Another feminine fashion, face lifting, however, brought a warning from Dr. Arthur Joseph Barsky, plastic surgery instructor of the New York post-graduate medical school.

Plunges Into Icy Lake to Save Great Dane; Dog Rescues Him

Excelsior, Min., Oct. 24 (AP)—This is the story of two Danes, George J. Dane, and his Great Dane.

George went out with his shotgun and the dog in search of ducks. The Great Dane started a dash across the thin sheet of ice on a small lake. It broke and the dog dropped in.

The master dropped his gun and plunged to the rescue. But the would-be rescuer turned out to be the rescued, for a few minutes later the Great Dane swished to shore, its teeth firmly grasping George Dane's collar.

Schooner Aground off Monomoy Point

Provincetown, Oct. 24 (AP)—The three masted schooner Jean F. Anderson, bound from Nova Scotia to Boston with a cargo of fertilizer, went ashore at low water today off Monomoy Point. Crews from two life saving stations were standing by.

Referendum on Dry Law Explained

All Sides of Baby Volstead Fight Are Reviewed at 10th District Meeting

By NANCY BREWSTER

Has prohibition increased the wealth of the nation or has it enriched bootleggers while law-abiding citizens suffer unemployment and poverty?

Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, assistant attorney-general presented both sides of this question, in discussing the proposed repeal of the Baby Volstead Act, before the clubwomen of the tenth district.

She spoke at the legislative conference, held with the 1900 Club at Billerica yesterday. Mrs. Fred L. Pigeon, legislative chairman of the State Federation, presided.

Mrs. Schofield presented both sides of each of the four referenda which will appear on the ballot in the November election.

SAVINGS MULTIPLIED

"If the Baby Volsted Act is repealed we shall still have the Volstead law but we shall have no state machinery to help enforce it," Mrs. Schofield pointed out. "The proponents and the opponents of this law each have convincing figures supporting their views but it is for each voter to decide what to do with this question."

She quoted government statistics showing the number of savings bank depositors to have multiplied four fold since the enactment of the 18th Amendment, the increase in home ownership, benefit to farmers, and great increase in industrial production and then discussed automobile accidents.

"Statistics on automobile accidents misrepresent the facts," Mrs. Schofield declared. "Because the number of cars on the highways has increased much more rapidly between 1920 and 1930 than they did in the previous 10 years. A large insurance company working with a traffic expert has analyzed the situation finding that double the traffic does not double the accident frequency but often quadruples it."

284,000 AGAINST LAW

One of the "dry" arguments was that 700,000 school children use the highways daily and that 36 per cent fewer children were killed by autos in 1930 than in the same period in 1924, due to arrests for drunken driving, revoking of licenses and strict enforcement of traffic laws.

"But a referendum on the Volstead act showed a majority of 284,000 citizens against it," Mrs. Schofield said. The chief right of our people is to change the laws they have made. This is our only safeguard against fanaticism and the representatives in the General Court are there to carry out the will of the people of the State. There is nothing sacred about the 18th Amendment that prevents the people from putting it into the federal constitution from taking it out."

One of the "wet" arguments embodied the statement that 1300 citizens have been slain by federal prohibition officers, drunkenness has increased under prohibition, especially among the young, court dockets are strangled by the volume of law violations, crime has flourished and law abiding citizens suffered unemployment while bootleggers became rich.

The logical reaction would be against prohibition, according to this picture.

Ruffled Frock Recalls Old Bustle

By ANN ARDEN

GETTING RUFFLED is one of our favorite indoor sports these days of dainty furbelowed styles, and there's a regular convention of ruffles gracing the skirt of the frock pictured. Of blue taffetas, the ruffles are put on in points high on the hips and pointing in a V back and front. The neck is a V deeper in back, the fronts crossing, and tying in bow at back of waistline. This is a delightful frock for a young girl. A three-strand pearl necklace is worn, with side fastening of baguette crystal slide.

THE RUFFLES and bustle effect are reminiscent of grandmother's frock, in much the same manner. This is a model from Jane Regny, who has taken to ruffles with glee for many of her cleverest evening frocks.

WHETHER YOUR evening gown is long in the front, long in the back, long all the way around, the wrap that accompanies it is usually short. A very clever evening ensemble observed recently at a smart gathering in Paris consisted of a long satin frock and a diminutive shoulder cape that recalled Directoire days. The cape had a high collar of swansdown.

YOU MAY have wondered whether there would ever be any deviation from the fitted bipline that is so prevalent these days. News comes from Paris couturiers that many of the newest evening gowns start the fulness of the skirt from the waist, relieving the hipline of that tight-fitting silhouette that has prevailed for many seasons now. In fact, there are ruffled skirts that begin their ruffles at a very high waistline, Empire effect.

* * *

OF COURSE the term petticoat engenders visions of beruffled garments very different from this slim sheath. But this is the modern descendant of the fulsome skirt of another day. It is light and smoothly fitting. The great width of the hem is not noticeable until the wearer is in motion. It fits the waist without a wrinkle and is daintily lace-edged.

Prohibition's Repeal Preferred to Whippings

Editor Boston American:

I hope it is not imposing upon your generosity to ask you again to express my views in answer to P. J. L. in regards to the erection of the whipping post.

While it is true that crime is plentiful, there is no proof that it is forging ahead because of the lack of drastic and inhuman punishment. On the contrary, there are statistics and stories of the hangings and lashings on a high hill, the populace for miles around coming out to the scene, that everybody might be awed into quietness. The punishment for picking pockets, and more pockets were picked in the crowd that went to the scene than had been known before. Hangings for murder, and men were murdered on the way there and on the way home.

What could be more terrible than the thought of being electrocuted, waiting slowly for a certain death? What could be more terrible than life imprisonment, without any hope for the future, shut up cruelly in a jail out of the light of day? But has crime decreased? It is true that this punishment is justly deserved in the case of a deliberate crime and that such offenders must not be given the chance to possibly repeat another offense.

But it is also plain to see that murders will not decrease because of severe punishment. Men have labored and given their lives toward modifying the penal code. Their efforts have been slow and painful through all the ages for more humanity of man to his fellowmen.

I would advocate to strive to prevent crime. Perhaps doing away with prohibition will prevent some of it. I admit that the auto is a pretty good accessory to the lawbreaker; but wait until airplanes become more popular—maybe it will improve on the auto.

If I am, as P. J. L. suggests, walking through the tulips with rose-colored glasses, I hope I stay that way because the color is clear and beautiful.

One of the first actions of our government is to prohibit or partially suppress immigration for a period of at least six months, until the present financial and industrial crisis is better understood, conditions become materially changed. Bible Verses Used in Prohibition Attack

Editor Boston American:

I am amazed to see the Bible used in favor of prohibition. I refer to Mrs. Copeland's letter in this column.

I find it opposed to prohibition. No verse fits the present hard times better than Proverbs XXXI 6-7.

"Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish and wine to those that be of heavy hearts. Let him drink and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more."

Psalms CIV-15: "Wine that maketh glad the heart of man."

Judges IX-13: "Wine which cheereth God and man."

Also Duet XIV-26 and I Timothy V-23.

The verse used Proverbs XXIII-32 refers to wine which is red and gives color in the cup. It is not an advice against any other wine.

And let me dedicate this verse to this champion of prohibition, I Timothy II-12

Anxiously awaiting the return of beer and wine, I am,

RAT SHAW.

Luxuries Cause of Depression of Today

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial, "Automobile Insurance Rates Need Thorough Probing," has just been called to my notice.

I agree in everything that you say except the underlying note of solicitude for the economic pressure on the automobile user. That, I think, is irrelevant to the fundamental issue of the effectiveness and proper administration of the law.

People do not need automobiles in the same sense as shoes and clothing, and in my opinion, the present business torpor is caused chiefly by such riotous indulgence in luxuries since the war that 75 per cent of the working people have no reserve money with which to purchase the necessities of life since the slump set in.

Why all this talk, anyway, about fraudulent liability insurance claims being the cause of the insurance companies' agitation for higher rates? Even Governor Allen has. It seems, read the situation with a glass eye in "failing for" this propaganda of this mighty insurance interests.

What difference does it make if a million dollars worth of exaggerated claims are presented and the insurance companies, as investigation will prove are refusing to pay even the legitimate bona fide claims resulting from fatalities in which their clients have been found guilty of operating so as to endanger; hence, proved guilty of causing the deaths?

So far as I have been able to learn, the insurance companies appear eager to accept all risks offered to them in this highly-profitable liability insurance business which, under the compulsory system, involves neither sales resistance nor appreciable selling expense.

If the insurance companies discriminate, strictly as to the character of the risks assumed, the most salutary benefit of the compulsory insurance law would have been realized in that at least one-third of the mentally, morally and financially-irresponsible hordes of registrants would be taken off the road forever.

In fact, failing to accomplish this, such a law can contribute nothing whatever to the cause of protecting human life, for it simply maintains the standard of moral and civic responsibility on the same plane, merely providing a system of PROBABLE RECOURSE to indemnification against criminals and incompetents by those who are injured or the survivors of those who are dispatched to the grave by the automotive Juggernaut.

Enforce a more rigid selective policy in writing risks, and then force the insurance companies to disgorge the millions they now stand owing legitimate claimants in this state, making the rates what they must be in accordance with the facts of the situation, and the law will have fulfilled its admirable purpose.

Colored Ice in Drinks Matches After-Taste

Icemen in General Session Add Their Art to the Home Ensemble

Atlantic City N. J., Oct. 24—Now, one may have ice with one's drinks in colors to match the mood—or whatever colored ice should match.

It's the latest move in color schemes proposed by the Eastern Ice Association, in convention here, and promises to upturn the ice business among those who trend toward the "latest."

For those who never took the next to the last amendment seriously, gay shades of crimson and the like may be had for the height of their evening and a sickly green to fit the mood of the morning after can be arranged.

Of course there are kitchen color schemes, too, or the harmless summertime beverages to be cooled in colors.

U. S. Flier and French Companion Killed

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP)—Gilbert Lane, American aviator, and his French flying companion, Pierre Nicolas, were killed today when a plane in which they were taking off from Le Bourget for Cairo and Addis Ababa for the coronation of Ras Tafari as emperor of Ethiopia, crashed and was destroyed by flames.

WIFE WELCOMES COSTE HOME

Havre, France, Oct. 24 (AP)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste, transatlantic flight hero, debarked from the liner France incognito today and his much advertised mass difficulties were immediately smothered in the embraces of Mme. Coste, who was awaiting him at the pier.

The couple left for Deauville in an automobile, intending to return here late for Coste's official debarkation, when he and Maurice Bellonte, his mechanic in the flight across the Atlantic, will be received by Mayor Leon Meyer and the entire City Council.

"They certainly do things in a big way in America," M. Coste told newspapermen. "Only for language our welcome was just as enthusiastic as it might have been or will be in Paris tomorrow. Will you please tell them in the United States how much we appreciated it."

Here's How You Can Make Savory Soups in Variety

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast over Station WHDH

How are those resolutions for careful budgeting coming along? I've a suspicion that you're probably starting the experience of many of us that Quite dangerous sly come to regard ing. Income When this is true, of course, the outstanding expense that be pared down in one way or another, so the budget pat tern.

Martha Lee

The easy way to prunes of the proper size, electric ity we is in its service and feels. By being careful in cooking foods I don't mean trying to make a meal and hearty family on eggless milk-less, butterless cake but I do mean getting a dollar's worth of value out of every 30 cents worth of material. You'll probably want to live up to as many as me when I say that no matter how lean your budget purchases may be I'll guarantee it to ever such day on such material to support a substantial stock pot—the foundation for all soups. Even clean vegetable peelings have their place in the stock pot along with every tiny bit of left-over, meat gristle, bone, trimmings—everything in fact except smoked or corn meats, large pieces of lamb fat and potatoes. Potatoes are apt to make a stock pot sour quickly.

VARIETY OF SOUPS

To start a stock pot, it is best to first buy a piece of shin beef. Add to this all the odds and ends mentioned above and allowing one pint of water to one pound of material, bring gradually to the boiling point and cook seven or eight hours at a very slow temperature. Do not skim unless you wish a clear soup. All sorts of vegetables (except lettuce), spices and salt may be added to taste. The stock should be strained and cooled each day. Take what is necessary for soup for your noon meal and the next evening and put it back in the pot and bring up again as directed. Someone has written: A stock pot should simmer and not boil. A gentle faint ripple is the only motion that should disturb the surface.

With stock like this on hand, there is simply no limit to the variety of soups you may have. A bit of canned tomato puree produces a clear tomato soup of substantial body. Rice noodles alphabet vermicelli barley tapioca are just a few of the variations.

To make a clear consommé, strain, cook skim and remove every particle of fat from a quart of brown stock. Break an egg, crush the shell, add the white of the egg to the shell with a tablespoonful of cold water and beat together just slightly. Mix this with the cold stock and place over the fire to heat gradually. Stir constantly. Let the liquid come to a boil and boil quickly for five minutes. Next pour in one-half cup of cold water and set aside for five or ten minutes. Then strain carefully through cheese cloth. If you wish to serve you can put with it one tablespoonful spaghetti boiled separately in salted water then put in cold water and add to the soup the last thing.

ONIONS ARE HEALTHFUL

Consommé Julienne is made by cutting into shoe string widths one white turnip, one carrot, a stalk of celery and six string beans and cooking them until just tender in a very little salted water. Then add to a quart of hot consommé with one-quarter cup cooked peas and baby lima beans.

Onion soup au gratin is hearty and delicious. Slice three onions very fine and fry golden brown in two tablespoons of butter keeping well covered. Then add to one quart of hot soup stock well-seasoned and boil five minutes. Slice three hard rolls very thin and toast in the oven until hard and dry. Pour the soup into a casserole or serving dish, arrange the toast slices on top and cover with a cupful of grated cheese. Then place in a hot oven or under a low broiler flame until the juice has melted and puffed up to an appetizing brown. Smart restaurants often serve this soup in attractive individual casseroles—petite marmites.

Oxtail soup is a very popular cold weather dish.

OXTAIL SOUP

Separate one oxtail into pieces at the joints and fry these in a very little lard or drippings to a nice brown. Add two tablespoons of flour and stir well. Then pour in gradually two quarts of your hot soup stock, bring to a boil and simmer until the meat is tender. Add one-half cup of celery cubes a sprig of chopped parsely, a small onion and one half cup of carrots and turnips diced. Season with salt pepper and one teaspoon of Worcestershire Sauce. Add water as needed to replace the stock as it boils away.

Can't I persuade you to start

Lee Classes Hear Expert on Cooking

The second fall session of the Brides and Business Girls' Class and the Homemakers' Class on Wednesday afternoon at the Martha Lee Cooking School watched K. Camille Den Dooven demonstrate with amazing dexterity the use of plain fruits and breads in the concoction of delicious and surprising dishes. Bread Pudding, Cabinet Pudding, Pear and Apple delicacies, changed from plain utilitarian items to fairy food under his skilful handling.

"No meal," says Den Dooven, "need be ordinary and tiresome if the housewife knows a few expert touches with which to brighten the most familiar dishes," a statement which he proved amply Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon.

Den Dooven is well known to many housewives of New England through his lectures and demonstrations in the Martha Lee Kitchen, and we are proud to announce that he will conduct four classes between now and the close of the June term this year.

We are fortunate to be able to obtain Den Dooven, through the courtesy of the H. A. Johnson Co. of Boston, for whom he is now conducting laboratory experiments.

Murmurs of amusement and applause swept through the audience from time to time at Den Dooven's quiet, clever remarks, with which he entertained the ladies, and each and all declared their appreciation of his unusual treatment of usually plain cooking.

Besides his research work in the laboratories of the H. A. Johnson Co., Den Dooven writes for various newspapers and magazines, and has recently completed the third of his culinary works, "The Modern Cook Book" intended for the housewife. His two previous books are The Hotel and Restaurant Dessert Book" and "The Master Bibler and His Work," each of unquestioned place in the world of professional cookery.

Famous paintings have been mysteriously disappearing in England in the last few years. Scotland Yard has been watching for them to turn up for sale. It is believed that these priceless old masters have been stolen by someone who is half mad and has hidden them from the world. The FIRST DUTY OF THE HOUSEWIFE

DR. COPELAND, famous food authority, says: "The first duty of the housewife is to place upon the table a bread so appealing that it will be taken in liberal amounts by every member of the family. Spread with good butter, and eaten with good vegetables and meats, it will surely provide an abundance of essential food elements. Bake or buy bread made with unbleached flour, that is untreated and undoctored."

Buy the best unbleached flour—Ceresota, famous 40 years for creamy, wholesome goodness.

SLICED
Bond Bread
has the same firm, close-knit texture as unsliced

HAVE YOU discovered how much better sliced Bond Bread is than ordinary sliced bread?

That's because Bond Bread, either sliced or not sliced, is a firm, substantial loaf. Whether you slice it yourself or buy it ready sliced, Bond Bread has no crumbly holes in it. The edges of the slices are not frayed. Such clean-cut slices result from using better materials and more careful baking.

When you have used sliced Bond Bread for a few days, you will notice something else. Bond Bread, sliced, like Bond Bread in the uncut loaf, keeps its flavor longer. This also is due to the firmer texture of Bond Bread. Being a substantial loaf, Bond resists evaporation. You will find the last slice just as fresh and creamy and flavorful as it can be. You will agree that nobody can buy more delicious bread.

Increasing consumer preference proves that, sliced or unsliced, there is no bread like

Bond

260-Pound Woman Fights Patrolman in Mud

Mrs. Rose Tobin, of Columbia rd., Dorchester, age 32, weight 260, and Patrolman Jeremiah Sheehan, former liquor squad rasher, battled for 20 minutes in the mud and rain in Michigan ave., Dorchester today.

They rolled in the street. Mrs. Tobin, it is alleged, bit the patrolman on the hand. And he applied various wrestling grips. Some seventy five minutes halted their care to watch.

Finally the patrolman called upon one of the spectators passed him the patrol box key and the patrol wagon was called.

Mrs. Tobin and the exhausted officers were getting their breath when the patrol arrived.

"Would you like a drink of water, Mrs. Tobin?" the patrolman asked.

"Absolutely, Mr. Sheehan," she replied. So he walked to a nearby garage to fetch it for her.

She was arraigned later in Dorchester court on charges of keeping and exposing and illegal transportation of liquor. Sheehan said he found two gallons of alcohol in her car and when he tried to drive her to the station the battle began. She was bailed in $400 on a one-week continuance of the case.

PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

The first meeting of the season will be held by the Yachtsmen's Club next Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Boston Yacht Club.

One of the high lights will be the illustrated lecture by George Owen, professor of naval architecture at M. I. T. and authority on yacht building and sailing. His subject will be 'Comments on the Defense of the America's Cup in 1930.'

Several interesting views of the recent races will be shown on lantern slides.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's harbor sketch is Capt William H Machen, marine superintendent of the Pocahontas Fuel Steamship Co, of 131 State st.

This captain's life would serve as a plot for one of the modern achievement stories, for he has advanced himself from a sailor to one of the commanding figures in the fuel industry in New England. He is Capt. Machen

Capt. Machen has an extensive marine knowledge and is an expert on both the navigating and the operating ends.

Capt Machen has been in command of several vessels, and one is named after him. He is one of the best known skippers in fuel transportation circles in the east, and has a host of friends.

He takes an active interest in boosting Boston harbor, and serves on Maritime Association committees on navigation and maritime legislation.

MORE MEMBERS

Chester A. Gardner, secretary of the Foreign Commerce Club, announced today that the membership of the club had reached the 202 mark in paid membership. There are a dozen or more applications also awaiting the directors. The club membership has doubled since the annual meeting held last spring.

NEW TYPE PROPELLER

The San Gil of the United Fruit line is in drydock at the Bethlehem plant in East Boston. A new contra propeller is being adjusted. The work will be completed today. This type of propeller increases the speed and decreases the fuel consumption of a steamer. It also increases the ease which a steamer can be steered and handled.

"Silk" Freeman Talks Business to Annie

CHAPTER 1

THE TELEPHONE BELL IN EIGHT-O-O RANG . . . AND AGAIN.

Polack Annie, who had bumped off the two toughest gorillas in her native town, Chicago, and because of whose deadly red hair and tilted nose and adolescently ripe form more than a dozen gangsters had been chopped down with machine-gun bullets, opened her eyes; she stretched and picked up a French hand-set.

"Hello," said she.

"B. B.," she heard in her ear.

"Aw-oh-okay-c'mon up."

She smoothed the covers, reached for a cigarette and lit it, sat higher on the pillows, patted and set her flaming crown and waited.

She heard a key and the door opened. She turned on a phoney smile and a look of welcome.

Toward her came a man of medium height, well set up. His clothes were tailor made, [illegible]tilliously pressed, but of sedate material and pattern. His face was sallow and saffron, but it was angular and not unattractive. His step had authority. He had come in with a key which he was easing back into his pocket.

Goldie's Mansion

"H'lo, Annie," he said. "Hope you appreciate this $50-a-day layout."

"Goldie Gorio," answered Annie, "had a mansion."

"Oh—so? He had a high funeral, too."

"He was laid away in a 50-grand stiff-box an' the flowers was nine carloads."

"He couldn't smell 'em."

"No—but the whole world did . . . listen, Big Boy—you're keepin' me in this here $50-a-day suite hecta times is tough in this distric' an' you can rent the cheap room, but you got no call for the big-time camps since the market went Democratic. You ain't givin' me no good time. I've step'd on a bare mattress in a joint an' enjoyed it; an' I've kipped in feathers just as ritz as this gingerbread bridal cell . . . Now that that's that—what's what?"

"Silk" Freeman smiled a smile that was almost a sneer.

"Take a sweet earful o' this, Fire-Top," he said, as he slid onto a chair. "You're not in Chicago now. You're in New York—my town. I didn't invite you, and this is a bad place to come to if you ain't sent for. You came in here carrying the banner and singing the blues. Now, if you don't care for the setup, lump on the rags and wheeze. I did copesettes before I met you—I guess I can battle it out after I never glom you again."

Took Deep Drag

Polack Annie took a deep drag on her butt, stamped it out in the porcelain ash tray with "Hotel Napoleon" burnt in it, gulped, held herself in, and said:

"Hey, Big Boy—you got me all cock-eyed. I didn't mean"—

"Swell. Then we understand each other. You beat a blow-off in Chi, you breezed in here, you loved me up. I put you up and I put up with you. So don't talk to me or talk up to me, because I don't take that stuff from any twist that ever navigated. When you realize who you are, who I am and what it's all about, I'll talk turkey to you. And make it snappy."

Polack Annie bit her red lips. She hadn't stood for much of that sort of conversation in the second person. But she was down and out, a long way from anywhere, and she wasn't yap enough not to know that Silk Freeman was a big shot.

And he was.

She had been reared in Chicago, the home of the storied gangsters. And the stories were true. But the Chicago outfit were chiselers. Now she was in the nest of the big dough. In Chicago the rackets were run by a bunch of boss hoodlums, who had battled up through the ranks by force of fists and guts and guts and typewriters and pineapples. In New York the aces had that kind of rough babies working for them.

From Slum Origin

Here the leaders, the chiefs, were politicians, capitalists, organizers. They sat in silk shirts behind mahogany desks. They let the suckers hustle for them and the trimmers muscle for them, put over the tall orders, slaughter one another and get peanuts for their pay. But they operated from the Adam's apple up. The men who did the slugging and the shooting were a flock of white wings to them.

And of all these, Silk Freeman was the Abou Ben Adhem.

Rising from slum origin, he had been educated on the sidewalks and finished in the pool-rooms, gambling joints and the speakeasies. Now he was the master racketeer of the proudest metropolis in the world.

Legions slaved for him and slew for him. He owned hotels and theaters and police captains and night clubs and office buildings and judges and Rolls-Royces and a borough president and a bank or two; he was cutting in on legitimate and nefarious enterprises from hand organs to ocean-going liners and from heroin to art works.

He would finance anything from a corner newsstand to a stadium. He was in on the crooked boxing bonanza, fixed races and baseball games in the rags; he controlled a boundless bootlegging system and dope ring and gambling monopolies; he worked with stock swindlers and bond thieves; he was behind the fabulous criminal bail bond trust, and he had a municipal franchise for a fleet of omnibuses.

Like a Mantle

His moniker, "Silk," fitted him like a mantle of that fine, delicate, glossy and fibrous substance which first hung about the fat shoulders of that fastidious and fantastic Roman emperor, Heliogabalus. Freeman had fibrous qualities of strength, personality and melasticity, with a sheen and gloss over it all. They tear fangs from rattlesnakes with a silk handkerchief.

His eye was shrewd, yet languorous, and it mirrored the congenial bargaining impulse. His nose was delicate and a bit hawk-like. His lips were thin and bloodless. He rarely smiled and never laughed, and his smile was more feared than his frown.

He was as mysterious as he was notorious. Everybody on Broadway knew him and nobody knew him anywhere. He hung out in two restaurants (in neither of which he had any financial interest) and had private telephones in each; he could be seen often lounging before a drug store, which was no hangout for any of his class, and in Hotel Napoleon (which was his and where he harbored never less than 20 girls—some broke, some mad over him, some so stewed or coked up they didn't know what town they were in) and in his own armored apartment on Park ave., in a building which was his, and

Polack Annie Finds Refuge in New York

"LISTEN, BIG BOY," said Annie to "Silk" Freeman, "you ain't givin' me no good time. I've kipped in feathers just as ritz as this gingerbread bridal cell. That's that." Annie is the heroine of "Gangster Girl," the new serial starting today on this page.

FORCED DOWN BY RAIN AT PAWTUCKET AIRPORT

Passengers and Two Pilots Escape Injury; Fliers Driven Back by Weather

The pilot and co-pilot of a New York-to-Boston trimotor passenger plane had a narrow escape today when the ship was forced by heavy rain and failing visibility to land at What Cheer airport, Pawtucket.

Lieut. Joseph A. Wilson, commander of the army fliers at the Boston airport, was coming up from Mitchel Field, L. I., and was the first to land. He landed to give aid if needed.

Another of the big Colonial passenger planes started from Boston for New York with seven passengers but was forced to return after nearly an hour in the air. Ray Winters, the pilot, said he reached Putnam, Conn. Beyond that point there was no visibility.

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. TWO SKIDDING AUTOS PLUNGE FROM HIGHWAYS INTO RIVERS

TRUCK CRASH BLAMED FOR ONE DIVE

Needham Autoist Goes on to Work After Smash Up; One Slightly Hurt

Two skidding accidents sent automobiles into rivers today, one into Charles river in Dedham, and the second into Mystic river, Arlington.

R. E. Lambert of 1290 Great Plain ave., Needham, escaped death or injury in the Dedham accident and a passing motorist took him to South Station, where he is employed as a stationary engineer.

The Arlington plunge followed a collision with a truck that sent the lighter machine into the Mystic near River street bridge. The car was partly submerged, but Lambert's machine stopped before it came to the water's edge at Dedham.

It plunged over a 10-foot embankment, however, near Causeway bridge, Needham st.

The Arlington auto was driven by Horace Bradford of Andover, according to police, and Mrs. Bradford was riding with him. Neither was hurt.

Edward Parks of Brighton at Belmont, driver of the truck received a slight cut on the head

DRAPER BACKER FOR BUTLER

Mrs. Frank C. Scanlan of Milton, supporter of Eben S. Draper for the senatorial nomination in the primary campaign, went on the air from Station WBZ-WBZA today, under the auspices of the Republican State Committee, and advocated the re-election of Governor Frank G. Allen and the election of William M. Butler.

Mrs. Scanlan is president of the Margaret Brent Club, which is a statewide organization of women interested in the study of proposed legislative measures.

Urging party loyalty, Mrs. Scanlan said "we were Republicans in the primary, we are Republicans now.

"Our wisdom will not permit us to enter any other party," she declared, "for the Republican party through intelligent legislation, human solicitude and persistent progressiveness laid the foundations on which the very might of this nation is builded."

Although she is not in sympathy with the 18th amendment she asserted she does not put it "above all other questions."

Harvey Wouldn't Be Here Only for Big Jim Mitchell

The Tidal Wave That Struck Olympians of 1908

If you're over in the North Station around 4:30 by the old town clock, this afternoon, and the air is rent with bloodcurdling whoops, don't think the Choctaws are off the reservation again. It is the wilder warriors of the Indians Of The North, led by Big Chiefs Sitting Bull Cannell and Squatting Cow Andres, on the war path after John Harvard's scalp in the Stadium, tomorrow. Those

George Underwood

As we mentioned on Wednesday, Dartmouth's squad this year largely is composed of Greater Boston boys, and no one can be blamed for mistaking the Big Green team for an all star scholastic eleven picked from Boston schools.

But John Harvard better not get it into his educated dome that he is going to play any schoolboy eleven. Not by the proverbial jugful! That warrior band Chief Crimson Beak is leading down from the blue hills of New Hampshire comes near being the biggest and best Big Green team that ever mopped up the gridiron with opposing palefaces. To a man up a tall tree it looks as if Harvard not only would need the return of Devens and Mays, but the return of a flock of Mahans, Caseys, Brickleys and other old heroes to prevent the Indians of the North from decorating their lodgepoles with the hirsute dome coverings of the Cambridge collegians.

We may be all wet, Clarabella, but so far this season we've picked 'em about right—knock wood. Underwood, knock wood—and we'll be the most surprised pigeon on Tremont st. if Dartmouth doesn't chalk up a victory tomorrow.

The only fly in the ointment is that Dartmouth has been feeding on lollypops and needs at least one good hard game under its belt before it gets a real fighting edge. Army whetted Harvard's fighting blade to razor sharpness and Arnie Horween's boys will be right at battle pitch for tomorrow's conflict. A weak team at that edge off mere beats a better team soft and overconfident from lack of testing competition.

Harvard is not a weak team. It is among Harvard's best, even considering last Saturday's defeat by the Army. The only reason we look for Dartmouth to win, tomorrow, is that on paper Dartmouth looms up as the strongest team in the East and one of the greatest football aggregations in gridiron history.

Now Harvard get in there and show the gang we're all wrong, Annabelle, all wrong.

LIL HARVEY COHN

The Dartmouth football warriors were preceded yesterday by a band of cross country scouts under the guidance of Chief Hoskins Wampen. For Firewater, Harvey Cohn. Many years ago Chief Loves His Firewater used to be a famous distance runner of a tribe of Irish Indians from New York known as the Irish-American A. C. Their war cry was Faugh-a-ballagh which in Ojibway, or maybe it's Gaelic, means "Clear the Way."

They were all Irish, Let's see, there was Alvah Meyer from County Mayo, Myer Prinstein from Tipperary, Abel Klein from Roscommon, Brian Boru Krapowicz from Kerry, Rosenberg MacGillicuddy's Reeks, not forgetting Emilio Lunghi from the Vale of Tralee and Hannes Kolehmainen from Cork. Yes, they were all Irish. Come to think of it, mixed up with them were a few Dutchmen like Martin Sheridan, John Flanagan and Paddy Ryan.

Chief Hookem Wampen of the Hanover redskins has a poker face. The first look of surprise that has crossed it since the Barbarossa was hit by a tidal wave 25 years ago next summer, showed on Harvey's graphic countenance when we ran into him on Summer st. yesterday.

Gosh, almost 25 years ago, the Olympic games of 1906! Yet Harry Hillman, the Dartmouth trainer, who was a member of the same Olympic band, will tell you it seems but yesterday.

The American Olympic team of 1906 went to Athens on the Barbarossa. In the middle of the Atlantic, the big ship was hit by a tidal wave. Hillman was hurled up against a stanchion with such force as to cripple his knee for the big meet. Martin Sheridan was swept along one deck down a companionway to another, landing with his favorite briar still clinched between his teeth.

Big Jim Mitchell, the giant weight thrower with a chest like a billowing sail and shoulders as wide as a barn door, was swept off his feet and pinned against the rail. The width of his tremendous shoulders only prevented his being swept between the rails.

A lucky thing for little Harvey Cohn.

If it wasn't for the width of Jim Mitchell's shoulders—poor Jim who lays in Calvary Cemetery, Long Island, without even a headstone to mark his grave, despite he won a score of American championships for New York A. C.—Harvey wouldn't be here leading the Dartmouth cross country squads.

The huge wave swept Harvey down the deck like a chip. Jim Mitchell spread up against a rail saw something sweeping by and reached for it, clamping it in a mighty grasp. It was Harvey Cohn's leg

If Big Jim hadn't clutched at that flying sweeping leg, Harvey Cohn would have been swept between the rails and carried out to sea by that mountainous wave which lifted the huge Barbarossa as if it was a cork.

THREE IN ONE

Harvey Cohn and Herb Trube of Cornell once were victims of two of the weirdest bulls that ever featured a championship track meet. In the mile run in the national championships of 1908 Cohn and Trube came down to the tape neck and neck, Ithacan winning by a handsbreadth.

It was discovered the officials had made a mistake in the laps, and were one lap short. The race was ordered to be re-run.

After an hour's rest they took their marks again. This time in another desperate finish Cohn beat Trube by a whisker.

Then it was found the officials had erred once more. Again, the race was one lap short.

Referee Sullivan asked the boys if they wanted to run again. Cohn agreed, but Trube declared:

"Mr. Sullivan, as you can ascertain, I have been sick for two weeks. I have not strength to run again."

"Gosh, Truby," piped up Harvey, 'if you are a sick man I'd hate to run you when you are well!"

McCarthy-Callahan Clash at Salem

Jack McCarthy of Roxbury and Willie Callahan of Nahua, Granite State champion, will clash in the feature bout of the Bell Street Rink Salem tonight. McCarthy has beaten Johnny Sweeney, Bobby Brown and boxed two sensational battles with Harry Allen at Brockton.

Laddie Les of Medford is to meet Young Granberg of Worcester in the special six-round semifinal. Horace Velha of Gloucester is to meet Paul Oulette, Tommy Doyle of Salem clashes with Sammy Ferro

"No Pay, No Play," Say Six Gridmen Who Quit College

Washington, Oct 24 Six players on the George Washington freshmen team want their pay or they won't play.

James W. Pixlee, director of athletics, said five of the players had come in a group, stating that unless the university reverted to its former practice of giving room and board as well as a means of getting spending money they would leave school.

Pixlee's answer was that they could leave immediately. Later, another player joined the "Pay or No Pay" group and he too was invited to leave the university, six other freshman athletes were under investigation.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington, said:

"George Washington would rather have no football team than one where the players were receiving money to represent the institution."

The players announced that they had withdrawn from the university.

Four of the group constituted Pixlee's first string freshman backfield. They were Frank Walsh, of Duluth, Minn., John Hofeins, of Mexico, Missouri; August Newcamp, of Erie, Pa., and Charles Robinson, of Newark, N. J. The others were Vance Joyce, of Butte, Mont., and George Generos, of Pittsburgh.

Pixlee said the group had planned to make their demand tonight, just before the arc-light game with the Georgetown University freshmen, the big game of the season. The game, however, was cancelled

Football Men Formerly Got Room and Board

Pixlee said that up until last Thanksgiving room and board, as well as athletic scholarships and other concessions had been given football men.

Things grew so bad under that system, he said, that players came who thought mostly of the room and board and little of the university. At times, he asserted, they showed so little spirit it was necessary to exclude them from the training table and lock their rooms to get them to play at all.

Last fall, however, the university issued an edict that it was cleaning house, effective Thanksgiving day. Pixlee said he took the athletic scholarship fund and split it equally among the squad. He added he told every man that he's free room and board would stop at that time, and that unless they wished to continue for the sake of the university alone they could go.

Big Six Committee to Investigate Kansas Star

Kansas City, Oct 24 The Big Six conference faculty representatives are reported to have started an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the transfer of Jim Bausch University of Kansas backfield star, from the University of Wichita.

Leslie Edmonds, Kansas sports official and Wichita business man, in his column in the Topeka Daily Capital, says that the eligibility of Bausch is marked for consideration at the conference. The investigation, Edmonds says, follows a protest made by Prof W. A. Tarr, Missouri's representative on the faculty committee.

Sherry to Meet Marin Plestina

Jack Sherry and Martin Plestina and Boston Impellitieri and John Leonard, all seen in the feature bouts on the second of Paul Bowser's wrestling shows at the Boston Arena on next Thursday night, have been the 25-pound limit aspirants but a week ago by winning his match in three minutes. The fans will once again turn out to see this mammoth.

Tony Rocco and George Mack have been signed to engage in one of the preliminary bouts.

Change Name of Niagara Ice Team

Pittsburgh, Oct. 23 (AP)—Negotiations were completed tonight whereby Pittsburgh interests will take over the Niagara Falls N. Y. franchise and players in the International Hockey League.

A squad of 25 men will report at the local rink Monday to begin practice.

Roy D. Schooley, pioneer hockey promoter, is president of the organization, to be known as the Pittsburgh Hockey Club, Inc. Horace Townsend, owner of Duquesne Garden, where the games will be played, is vice president, and John J. Callahan, secretary-treasurer

Winchester Breaks Hill and Dale Mark

Winchester high cross-country team, with Robert Winchester breaking the course record, defeated Weymouth high, 17 to 50, on the Middlesex Fells course and set a new course record of 13 minutes 3 seconds.

NO CHANGE IN YALE LINEUP

New Haven, Oct. 24—Yale will use the same lineup against West Point in the Bowl tomorrow that faced Brown last week, according to present plans of Head Coach Stevens. Stevens said that the backfield which was early last year reorganized and sent repeatedly against the Bruins would probably be retained against the Army and that he now plans to use it in starting the game.

Surprise was felt last Saturday when Stevens sent the midget, Albie Booth into the starting backfield combination for the first time and used a backfield which had been together only three times.

The four players selected to ride Booth as quarterback and field general; New Austen, who was Booth's partner in handling punts on the reserve quartet last season; Kempton Dunn, right halfback of the plunging backfield which has started nearly every game this fall, and Joe Crowley.

Smith and Jones Guest Fighters

New York, Oct. 24 (INS)—Harry Smith and Gorilla Jones were guest performers at the Olympia Club in Harlem last night. They didn't get a penny of the gate receipts, which went to $2500.

The pair were working out a delayed effort in trying to solve the matter of individual superiority. Both claimed the colored middleweight title, and a few months ago fought at the Queensboro Stadium to settle the argument. Just before the end the referee stopped the bout and called it "no contest."

Their money, a total of $1360, was held up by the boxing commission, with orders that they come back some day and fight it out on more up-and-doing lines.

So they went to it again last night and Smith got the decision at the end of 10 rounds.

"Bus" Talbot May Not Start for Harvard Against Green

Whether or not "Bus" Talbot, Harvard's first string left guard, will play when Harvard and Dartmouth clash tomorrow, is the main topic of conversation across the Charles today.

In naming his official starting lineup, Coach Arnold Horween omitted Talbot from the list, and stated that Henry Myerson of Brookline will start at left guard.

Horween has named both Vanan Moushegian and Bob Ogden as choice for right end and Jack Crickard and Eddie Mays are rumored to start at right half.

Talbot has been declared completely out of the injury list and was the expected selection for service beside Ben Ticknor. Harvard's giant pivot man

The sudden change of mind on Horween's part started rumors to the effect that the blonde and burly youth from Bingham was not as right as extolled and that Horween fears another week of scrimmaging is necessary for Talbot.

Harding and Ogden Will Probably Start on Wings

Vic Harding and either Ogden or Moushegian will make Harvard's wing pair. It will probably be Ogden rather than Moushegian at right end, for against the heavy Dartmouth line, Ogden will be more effective than Moushegian. Ogden, by reason of his weight, strength and general football adeptness, without question, Harvard's strongest player in this spot.

Harvard will start a pair of burly and bruising tackles in the persons of Frank Kalec, a 200-pound stripling, and Fred Richards, Kalec's duplicate in weight and size.

The Crimson center trio, with Johnny Trainer and Ben Ticknor and either Talbot or Myerson, should give the Dartmouth backs a tussle around the center of the Harvard line

If Eddie Mays goes into action tomorrow, it will be his first engagement against a major opponent in 1930. In addition, it will see the famous speed backfield consisting of Wood, Devens, Mays and White, united again.

It is extremely doubtful, however, that Horween will risk Mays over Jack Crickard tomorrow. Crickard has pound better no ram is just what Harvard needs if they expect to go places against Dartmouth's powerful line.

The host of Dartmouth followers are pouring into Cambridge today, Accompanying the Hanoverians are hundreds of undergraduates.

Both Harvard and Dartmouth will work out in the Stadium today. The season for the Crimson clad gridsters will be short and sweet. Horween has ordered only the lightest kind of work for his gang today.

BROMBERG WILL START TOMORROW

By BILL GRIMES

Dartmouth's Big Green football squad reach Boston this afternoon for its annual battle with Harvard tomorrow at the Stadium

Coach Cannell is bringing down three full elevens and several assistants by the way of Guy Bromberg, stellar Green lineman, was dandied when it was announced that Bromberg has made a rapid recovery from the heavy cold which bothered him, and that he will be ready to face the Crimson eleven.

Bill Grimes

Although there is a shortage of right halfbacks, Coach Jack Cannell will field a most capable aggregation in the Stadium

Les Clark and Andy Frigard are positively out of the Harvard game. Unquestionably, the absence of Clark and Frigard will affect the Big Green, both offensively and defensively.

Not only is Clark a great ball carrier but he is the outstanding 200 back of the entire squad. Frigard has been a consistent ground gainer in preliminary games, but he records a wholly unnecessary and uncalled for leg injury playing against B. U.

Ward Donner, better known as "Schmittle," who gained sufficient recognition last fall to be rated as a third string back on the freshman team will start at right half. Donner was passed over last fall because he failed to bring a reputation with him from Albany Academy. Howard Wilson, Bill Thompson, Johnny Donovan, Jack Smart, Dan Degasis, Lyn Schollenberger and Dick Haugen, all had the edge on Donner last season, but the boy from the capital city of the Empire State has come into his own under Jack Cannell

Red Porter who is well known for his athletic ability down on the North Shore, will be Donner's spare. Porter was hurt last week but has returned to the squad and Harry Hillman expects him to be ready and 100 per cent fit for the Crimson.

Bromberg Better and Will Start Game

Bromberg has drawn a shift into Dartmouth when he came up with a heavy cold on Wednesday, but he has recovered and will be at his guard With Bromberg out, Dartmouth would have been in bad hole, for the New Britain boy has few equals in the college ranks as an all around guard.

Dartmouth will toss a couple of last year's regulars against the Crimson. They are Bill Hoffman and Eddie Toothaker Hoffman, of course, was known and appreciated by the coaches before he even reported for the varsity. He is a regular of the mature Bromberg is build and just as fast and as deadly a blocker. He captained his freshman team two years ago and as soon as he became eligible for the varsity, Paul Schaw, who had teamed with Bromberg for three years, was immediately converted into a tackle

Eddie Toothaker started at quarter for Bill Hoffman's freshman team He was in trouble with the Dean's office last year and passed up athletics for the time being.

Harvard scouts have turned in some glowing reports on Toothaker as an open field runner. He is very fast and exceptionally shifty. If his interference can get him to the line of scrimmage, Toothaker is liable to start a big break away for long runs.

Ted Kenyon is due to shine when he relieves Bill Morton, who has the call over the Denver boy, probably because of his long generalship They are both punters and passers but Morton is carrying the ball better this season.

The Dartmouth squad arrives in town this afternoon and will be quartered at the University Club.

Old-Timers Will Recall Dedication of Stadium

While reminiscing at the Dartmouth class reunions this evening, the old-timers will recall the 11 to 0 victory, which dedicated the Stadium in 1903, and such former stars as Bill Knibbs, Bill Cleary and Tom Keady will not be overlooked.

Knibbs, Cleary and Keady registered Dartmouth with the class of 1903. Knibbs is still regarded as one of the Big Green's best line plungers few guards have equaled the standard of pep set up by Clough and Tom Keady was no mean performer himself, but failure to catch a regular job on Myron Mc-Cormick's eleven.

Will Dartmouth repeat itself at Dartmouth?

Furnished in the present freshman class at Hanover are Bill Knibbs Bill Clough and Walter Keady. Moreover, the sons of the former Green luminaries are football players, but, strangely, none is following in the footsteps of his father as regards positions.

Young Bill Clough is a fullback He prepped at Colby Academy and Tabor. He was the first string line

Young Stribling Due to Arrive Today

W. L. "Young" Stribling, Macon, Ga., heavyweight, is due to arrive in this city today for his bout with K. O. Christner on October 31 at the Arena

Original plans called for the winner of the recent heavyweight bout between Con O'Kelley and Jack Gagnon to meet Stribling here, but each of these men has refused the match.

Gagnon flatly refused to meet Stribling at this time, while the Irish heavyweight bowed his way out of the match on account of an injured eye sustained in the bout against Gagnon.

Meehan Picks Dartmouth and Yale to Win Tomorrow

FORDHAM AND N. Y. U. TILT A TOSS-UP

By DIXIE MEEHAN
Head Football Coach at New York University

New York, Oct. 24—Football [illegible] Pittsburgh and Dartmouth leading the parade in the East.

Notre Dame, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Kansas in the Middle West, Oregon and Washington State in the Far West, and Georgia, Vanderbilt, Alabama and Tulane in the South, are leaders in their respective sections.

N. Y. U.-FORDHAM. The game is a toss-up. I believe both teams have held back a little as this game is the crucial one for both. Fordham, of course, has a veteran combination and a splendid defensive record.

NOTRE DAME-PITTSBURGH. This is liable to be an upset as it is played in Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh previously has been weak on defending against passes. Notre Dame throws but few passes, but when throwing always are dangerous. Rockne has a great quarterback in Carideo. This is the most important factor in any game. For this reason I am picking Notre Dame.

YALE-ARMY. I do not think that the Army showed enough in the Harvard game Saturday to beat Yale.

Yale has had a fine schedule which has prepared them for this contest. With Albie Booth performing as he has in the past, I think they have a shade on the Army but it will not be very much and an early break may decide the contest.

DARTMOUTH-HARVARD. Dartmouth did not get a hard test last Saturday and its strength is somewhat unknown. Some of the injured Harvard players will be back in the enotest but I think that Dartmouth will win this class match has become one of New England's most colorful meetings.

Wisconsin Meets Purdue in Mid-West Classic

In the Mid-West the classic is Wisconsin and Purdue. Purdue is the Big Ten champion last year but I do not think it will hold up against Glenn Thistlewaite's huskies.

MICHIGAN-ILLINOIS. This game is played at Michigan's gridiron. But do not be surprised if Bob Zuppke brings his Illinois proteges back with a victory in what may be the greatest football comeback of the year.

Kansas, a dark horse leader in the West, is playing Iowa State and should win.

Out in the Far West Stanford plays Southern California. Apparently the Pacific Coast is all through arguing with the East regarding respective merits, and now are confining disagreements to their own territory. I believe Stanford will win.

In the Navy-Princeton game there is a strong possibility of Bill Roper inspiring his men for a comeback. My other selections follow:

Bucknell-Gettysburg. Bucknell.
Rutgers-Delaware. Rutgers.
Brown-Holy Cross. Brown.
Carnegie-Tech — West. Reserve. Tech.
Nebraska-Montana. Nebraska.
Syracuse-St Lawrence. Syracuse.
Oregon-Idaho. Oregon.
Washington State-Montana. Washington State.
Tulane-Georgia Tech. Tulane.
Georgia-Auburn. Georgia.
Kentucky-Virginia. Kentucky.
Alabama-Vanderbilt. Southern classic, one of the best games of the day. I look for an upset and I think Alabama will beat Vanderbilt.

Shaw Booters Win Schoolboy Feature

The Robert G. Shaw eleven of the Boston intermediate schools soccer league scored a surprise 1 to 0 victory over the undefeated Theodore Roosevelt eleven at Billings Field West Roxbury in the biggest upset of the day.

Another unlooked for victory was the 4 to 3 win over Abraham Lincoln eleven by the Joseph H Hurley eleven

Five of the games resulted in scoreless ties, the Michelangelo and Oliver W. Holmes the only undefeated teams in the race, playing scoreless ties with the Bigelow and Washington Irving teams respectively.

SCHOOL SOCCER RESULTS
Roger J. John Hurley 1.
Frank V. Thompson 5, Lewis 4.
Joseph H. Barnes 3, Abraham Lincoln 0.
Donald McKay 6, Washington 4.
Michelangelo 3, Bigelow 3.
Washington Irving 3, Oliver W. Holmes 3
Robert G. Shaw 2, Theodore Roosevelt 0.
William H. Taft 0, Grover Cleveland 0.

Santa-Carter Bout Put Ahead a Day

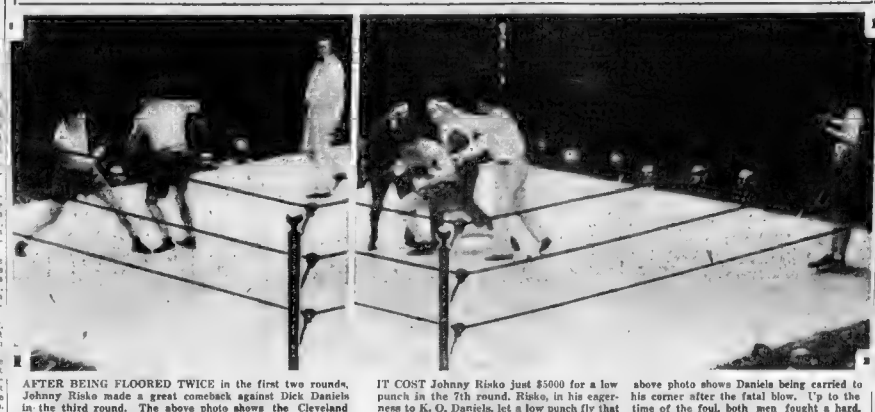
The Jose Santa-Carl Carter heavyweight wrangle has been shifted a day ahead, to next Thursday evening, at the Providence Auditorium.

Both Santa and Carter are now at Providence and will give public training exhibitions. Santa weighs 185 pounds, while the giant Negro tips 220. It will be Santa's ninth fight in the country. He has yet to meet defeat.

Billy Lynch and Henry Janco will clash in an eight-round semi-final. Eddie Holmes meets Young Lefty in another eight-round mill.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

HIGHLIGHTS IN RISKO-DANIELS BOUT AT GARDEN



AFTER BEING FLOORED TWICE in the first two rounds, Johnny Risko made a great comeback against Dick Daniels in the third round. The above photo shows the Cleveland baker boy forcing Daniels to the ropes.

IT COST Johnny Risko just $5000 for a low punch in the 7th round. Risko, in his eagerness to K. O. Daniels, on a low punch fly that caused Daniels to collapse in great pain. The above photo shows Daniels being carried to his corner after the fatal blow. Up to the time of the foul, both men fought a hard, thrilling battle.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS:

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Oct. 24—I gather from the mild squawks of the gentlemanly turf writers of the large town, than whom there are none gentleman, that the better race hawsses have gone South, leaving in the metropolitan area only a job lot of armadilloes, horned toads, gila monsters and ground squirrels.

Thus, the class of racing is stowed upon the largest city in the good old U. S. A. (see census) in the past couple of weeks has been very plenty kadorus. Even the clients are complaining, and when a client complains there is something quite out of plumb, indeed, because a client is the last person in the world to find anything wrong with anything. Otherwise he would not be a client.

Damon Runyon

Up to about Oct. 1, the New York racing is as good, and maybe a little better than it is anywhere else. Then the hawss owners, like the ducks and the geese, hear the call of the Southland, and migrate in great flocks to Maryland, taking their heyburners with them. The purses at Havre De Grace, Laurel and Pimlico are better, and so is the climate for man and beast in the autumn time.

As a result of the exodus, New York is left with the percupines and the crocodiles. Only the other day, Brother George Daley, one of the gentlemanliest of the gentlemanly turf writers, remarked that New York had tumbled into the old iron hill class. I infer that iron hill was lower than a snake's Adam's apple in the matter of Hawss racing

N. Y. Tracks Should Fold Up With Baseball Season

Well, of course, there is no excuse for hawss racing in New York after October 1, anyway, and as long as the track owners insist on carrying on into the snows they have only themselves to blame.

The hawssmen would be displaying mighty poor judgment if they stuck around New York with Maryland offering fatter purses, and better weather, not to mention nicer prices in the marts of trade. The local tracks will either have to fold up with the baseball season, or introduce turtle racing after the plants in the Ozlots country start drumming for the fall custom.

It has long been my contention that there are too many out-moded tracks in New York, and that the number might well be reduced to three—Belmont and Saratoga, of course, and a new plant somewhere near the seashore for the hot weather galloping. Aside from Belmont and Saratoga, the big town courses are pretty much of a joke compared to the magnificent modern plants of Maryland, Illinois Lower California (Mexico), and other places.

Racing Has Enjoyed One of Its Biggest Years

Oddly enough, in a year when times are tough, hawss racing has had one of its biggest years in most spots, so far as attendance and public interest is concerned I haven't any statistics on New York, but Maryland, Illinois and Kentucky have hung up new attendance records.

Saratoga and Belmont each had one record breaking day, gallant Fox contributing to both I don't know how they came out on the year. I was present at Havre de Grace one day this fall when the track came close to equalling its best attendance record, Out in Chicago, Hawthorne has been doing big business lately.

From Maryland, many of the hawss owners will keep shoving southward with their stables. Some are headed for New Orleans, some for Havana, but the majority are trying to make Miami. Over 1000 nags are already booked for the Florida burg and stable room is quite a problem there.

As against the big attendance, however, the betting is far below the average. The folks seem eager to go out and peer at the races, but they are not gambling to any great extent. The five dollar better who expended to a hundred dollar man, is back to the finish, or less.

Among the pari-mutuels of Maryland, and Illinois and Kentucky naturally have more appeal to the small better than the genial bookie, such as we have in New York. A sensitive soul can ease himself up to the $2 window without embarassment, but imagine his confusion trying to get down that kind of money with a bookie!

RISKO LOSES $5000 ON FOUL

By GEORGE W. GRIMM.

Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, cost himself $5000 by fouling Dick Daniels of St. Paul in the seventh round of the feature contest of the Boston Garden boxing show.

Daniels will now meet Babe Hunt at the Garden on the night of Nov. 7.

George Pavlick of Cleveland outboxed Joe Zelinsky of Winthrop to win the opening ten rounder.

Jack Dorval of Pittsburgh knocked out Knute Hansen of Norway in the second round of their scheduled ten-round bout. Hansen went down for the count of nine shortly after the second round started. He got up and went down again for the count of eight. The third time he went down, before Johnny Martin stopped the bout.

Harold Henderson of New York, 150-pounder, gave John Gilbert Casper, East Boston, a severe pasting in their contest which was scheduled for six rounds. Referee Jimmy Walsh stopped the bout at the end of five rounds.

Russell Kelcourse of Quincy, former amateur boxer, won his bout with George Perry, Jr., of Revere who substituted for Victor Lotte of Marlboro. The bout went six rounds

B. C. Expects Hard Fight With Dayton Tomorrow

Boston College expects to have a hard fight on its hands in the game with Dayton at Fenway Park tomorrow. But McKenney will start a substitute eleven and hold his regulars in readiness in case the Western team should prove too strong.

The Flyers will have a more or less veteran team with which to oppose McKenney's makeshift lineup and is by no means a setup. The squad of 26 players will arrive here today.

McKenney is hoping that it will not prove necessary to use his first stringers against the Flyers, for he wants his sub to get a real testing.

Henry Buckley is the only lineman who started the Villanova and Fordham game, who will answer the whistle tomorrow. Henry has been going on high all Fall and has developed into of the finest ends that B. C. has ever boasted. Buckley is now the only "iron man" on the squad with Bud Gorman on the bench suffering from a displaced shoulder.

McKenney added another newcomer to the forward wall when he replaced Al Morelli with Di Pesa. Al's old team mate at Revere High Di Pesa is an experiencing ard and has a chance now to win the regular position

The Flyers will have White and Colan, ends, Medley and Zierold tackles, Jira and Smythe, guards, Sackwitz, center, Medley and Fitzsimmons, halfbacks, Jordan and Cabrinha, quarterbacks and Schnur, fullback.

Many Hub Boxers in St. Joe's Show

Among the entries in the 135-pound division in the St. Joseph's T. A. S. amateur show at Mechanics Building, Saturday are: Joe Genaro, Cambridge; Louis Lavargna, Boston, Bobby Campbell, Brookline, Joseph Mullen Quincy, Nick Pucillo, Boston; Peter Babzarial, Milford; George Panta, East Boston; Johnny Brown, South Boston; John Crowley, Everett; John Carusone, Roxbury; James Carney, Taunton, Dick Manning, South Boston, and Frank Sequeria, Boston

INDIAN TO LEAD ATTACK ON B. U.

Springfield's powerful eleven is expected to defeat Boston University for the second successive year when the two clash at the William E. Nickerson Recreational Field, tomorrow, and, incidentally, break the Terriers' three-year undefeated home record.

The Gymnasts have been beaten only by Harvard this year and also kept their goal line uncrossed, with the exception of the Harvard tilt.

Coach Rothacker has a powerful offense that has been built around Tommy Owl, a full-blooded Indian. Tommy can boot 50 yards consistently. He is an accurate passer and is a classy broken field runner. Owl ran wild against the Terriers last year and although he will be a marked man tomorrow, he will be dangerous at all times.

Ike White, the Gymnasts have another star. This 145-pound slugging halfback is one of the smartest small college quarterbacks in New England. He picks his plays with uncanny accuracy and can keep his club going at top speed, right through the entire game

St. Peters Seek Football Games

The Saint Peters Athletic Club of Malden wants to get into action on Sunday with any strong team. Due to a cancellation this team is faced with the prospect of remaining idle.

Among the players on St. Peters are Dave Daley of Des Moines University, Joe Delaney from Villanova, Gullio Villane of Niagara, Ed Laffan, Peter Prusak, Jim Mangan and Fred Mahoney from Malden high school.

Framingham Lion Tamers, Natick Town Team, Haverhill Pros and Peabody Elks are preferred as opponents. Write to J. F. Farrell, 63 Gale, Malden, or call Malden 1088 between 6 and 7 p. m.

DENIES GRID OVEREMPHASIS

Bridgeport, Ct., Oct. 23, (AP)—Ted Jones, former Yale coach, told a meeting of the University of Michigan Alumni here tonight that football cannot be overemphasized, except "probably in the newspapers."

"Football," he said, "has become a national institution in our life and is being engaged in by the tough and rugged youth of the physical, mental and even moral type. Football creates a mental and moral ruggedness which far surpasses physical ruggedness.

It also exemplifies true loyal college spirit. Give me a team composed of players with mental and moral courage on the two-yard line and 75 per cent of the time it will hold another team with physical ruggedness, speed, ability on a goal line stand."

Benny Friedman, former Michigan quarterback, also spoke

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 24—Herman Perlick of Kalamazoo, Mich knocked out Jackie Shupack of Elizabeth in the first round of a 10-round bout here.

"Cable Fordham results."

This is believed to be a new long-distance record for school spirit at N. Y. U. Maj. Travis, who is 48 years old, took a four-year course under Federal sponsorship at New York University and at the present time is in Moscow, making analysis and recommendation of Soviet accounting methods.

Eighty thousand fans are expected to attend the game already 68,000 tickets have been sold

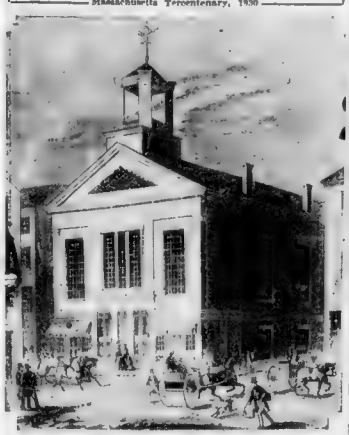
In Old Boston—No. 393

Massachusetts Tercentenary, 1930



THE CHURCH BUILDING shown here came into the hands of the Universalists in 1785 and was established as the First Universalist Church in that year. The first pastor was John Murray, the father of American Universalism. When he first attempted to preach in Boston he was greeted with a shower of stones. This building stood at the corner of North Bennet and Hanover sts., and with some changes is now used as the Baptist Seamen's Bethel. The Universalist congregation last worshipped in Warrenton st., but merging with another congregation, has lost its identity. TOMORROW—Winter st.

Chiang Kai-Shek Becomes Christian

Shanghai, Oct. 24 (US)—General Chiang Kai Shek, nationalist president of China today formally embraced Christianity. He was baptized in the international settlement at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Soong, mother of Minister of Finance T. V. Soong.

Chiang's baptism makes him the second Chinese military leader to become a Christian, Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang, famed northern militarist, is already known as the "Christian General."

MANY DEAD IN MEXICAN FLOOD

Mexico City, Oct. 24 (AP)—Dispatches to the newspaper Excelsior from Tampico today quoted Capt. Alvaro Barrazo commander of the Federal Garrison at Alamo, state of Vera Cruz, as saying that many persons, possibly hundreds, had died during floods there Tuesday.

He escaped from the town with his troops as the waters licked at their heels, and said that from high ground he had seen "possibly hundreds" of persons swept away in the sudden onrush of water.

He said the town was almost destroyed. An American aviator E. Vatrin, flying over what he believed to be Alamo yesterday said several buildings were left standing and he saw a number of persons walking about.

Q. and A. Department

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Hetta—I am in love with a gentleman who is going steady with me very dear girl friend. I've refused to go out with him once or twice, but now he's asked me again. What do you think I should do?

—In a Flutter.

Ans.—It would be pretty hard for me, dearie, knowing nothing about either you or the mugg, to tell you right off, as it were, what to do and when. Bidding him along with a few turn-downs shows you got the right idea. But once or twice is enough. You don't want that to discouraged. And unless you can give me some dope on the gent, and a few hints as to your technical abilities, I would say the best thing for you to do is work along the lines you've found most successful in the past. Good luck, baby, and do let me know if you get him.

It might not do a bit of harm

And vice versa, it's a pity

There's little weal and too much woe.

Making of Lace

Lace of a very delicate texture was made in France and Flanders in 1320. The process of "gassing" by which cotton lace was said to be made equal to fine linen lace was invented in England and became an industry.

In Love With Cassmate, She Awaits Glance That Brings Blush

She Thinks He Doesn't Care Much

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily column.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6.35 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am only a junior and sadly in love with a classmate. A friend told my fortune, saying I would marry a bald man. He is a blond. Every once in a while, at school, I can feel his glance on me—and when I do, I picture him as a model husband. I think of having a home with three or four children and a white picket fence. They say he is the handsomest lad in our room in junior high school. Sometimes I have a feeling that he doesn't care for me—when we were first in the same classroom I used to turn all red when our eyes met. When I don't show how much I care he seems to notice me more, but when I notice him he doesn't pay any attention to me. There's another girl in school I think he loves. Whenever I talk his name naturally rises to my lips, but I hold it back because I can't help blushing. Do you think this has any effect on him? ANXIOUS.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Anxious: Your letter is typical of a girl in love for the first time. And while it's undoubtedly very delightful and thrilling, it's probably interfering a good deal too much with your school work and other daily routine. Waiting for the glance that makes you blush will probably get you an "unsatisfactory" on your school report. Can you say, when you notice the boy too obviously, he pays less attention to you than when you practiced indifference. Perhaps if you don't notice him at all he may take a little more interest in you.

Two of a Kind

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 21 years old, I was married when I was just 18, but we only lived together two months and my wife ran through $3000 in that length of time. I am of a very religious temperament and have had a hard life, having had a step-father who was jealous of mother and I.

About three months ago I met a wonderful girl and asked her to marry me; we became engaged and I bought her a diamond ring that cost $95. But we've had several little quarrels. When we're alone we get on fine, but as soon as we're with other people she does everything to hurt my feelings ANXIOUS SUITOR

Dear Suitor

The woman you married and who squandered your $3000 in two months and the girl who accepts an expensive ring and humiliates you before people seem to be two of a kind. I'm afraid you won't like the advice I'm going to give you when I say that you're not seriously till you're old enough to take care of yourself and your money

Making the Hall Serviceable

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Oct 24—Want to make your house or apartment larger? Want to add a while room, perhaps?

It can be done and without the fuss of carpenters and builders Just consider your hall or foyer What are you doing with it? What could you do with it?

You could do the same thing lots of other people are doing. Making the hall useful. Often actually turning it into another usable room.

Even when the hall is very small, as it is in so many modern apartments, it can still be made serviceable. Most any hall has room for some sort of a console group—a table and mirror at the least

The mirror, with its powers of reflection, not only makes your hall look larger than it really is —but it's useful for the departing guest as he settles his hat or she wraps her coat.

And the table, even if it has but a single drawer, can be used to pack away some odds and ends.

Queen Anne lowboy—Chippendale mirror—Duncan Phyfe chairs

Chest Grouping

If instead of a table with a single drawer you used a chest or a lowboy, such as we've had illustrated, there's enough drawer space to do lots of things with.

Where there's no guest room and the weekend visitor has to be put up in the living room this hall chest comfortably takes all her belongings.

If your hall is larger there's no end to the things you can do in it and so add to your living space

Libraries

Some folks are turning their halls into libraries, building bookshelves along the wall and adding a comfortable chair to read in.

A small settee with a table and lamp—or a chair in place of a settee—actually make the hall into a room.

Maybe a secretary would fit into yours. Then with a chair, you've added a room to write in

An extension table—that takes so little room when not extended —with a chair at each end, makes a decorative group in the hall And—turns the hall into a dining room, when the table is extended Which is an idea many an apartment dweller has made use of.

And, of course, if it's large enough, the hall can always serve as the extra bedroom by the simple addition of a good-looking day bed.

The illustrations show some of the fashionable pieces people are using in halls to make them more useful

At the lower left is the simplest kind of console group a modern non-period hall mirror and table suggesting of Jacobean in its lines. Windsor chairs at each side and a mirror over the table

The other group shows a Queen Anne lowboy with Chippendale mirror and Duncan Phyfe chairs And the third illustration is of one of the popular group settees grouped with an end table

Bride Must Wear Her Veil

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

At a wedding reception, when the wedding guests are many and formally dressed, is it proper for the bride to remove her veil so to keep it on throughout the whole evening? MARY ANN

The bride wears her wedding veil during the reception and until she goes to change her bridal finery for her traveling costume. The hour of her glory is very short, and she should make the most of it by wearing her bridal ensemble. And there isn't any reason why she should not

Addressing Formal Announcements

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am writing to you for advice as to the correct way of addressing and filling in birth announcement cards

1—I would like to know if it is correct to address the card to "Mr. and Mrs."?

2 Does it make any difference if the person is a relative?

For instance to my sister, I believe it would be correct to include her husband

As to friends I feel that to affair is rather personal and s only not include "Mr." I w to want to be unfair or partial when a...ilding the cards.

READER

1—Yes always address such announcements as you would any other kind of announcement—to Mr and Mrs. Henry Aleh

2—No. It makes no difference that some of the cards are to be sent to relatives. You address them to husband and wife

Name on the Mail Box

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

There has been a warm argument in our office that we would like settled, namely

A says that the name of a married couple on a mail box should read: First name of the husband and the last name of his husband. Example John Doe

B says the plate should read Mr and Mrs. John Doe

Best wishes for your column and many thanks. L. L. S.

A mail box usually carries the name of the "man of the house —John Doe. Or, if it is not necessary to have the first name, it may carry only the last name.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

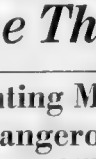
Fainting May Become Dangerous Habit

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

RECENTLY I met a man on the street with a black eye and joked him about it. He told me that he had fainted and in falling had struck the corner of a table. Of course all his acquaintances laughed at this explanation. When it comes to a black eye no excuse is a good one.



Dr. Copeland

I believed the story because I myself have sustained similar injuries result from fainting. The wonder is there are not more accidents.

Of all health subjects that are broadly discussed in newspapers and magazines, fainting is the favorite topic. Yet when it comes to helping someone who is about to faint, or who has fainted, we usually do the wrong thing.

Fainting may be caused by one of many things. Seeing or hearing unpleasant things may bring it about. Weakness as a result of hunger and excessive work are common causes. Exposure to heat or cold, bad air, or lack of exercise may be particularly the cause of fainting in certain persons.

Some are more prone to faint than others. More women faint than men, yet there are some men who will faint at the slightest provocation. Fainting may become a habit. One may have experienced a fainting spell, the fright of it lingers and at the next scare there may be another faint.

When we faint the blood rushes from the head to other parts of the body. In order to maintain consciousness we must at all times have a good blood supply to the brain. When the blood supply is cut off from the brain, as it does in a faint, we become unconscious. Until the heart action becomes strong enough to pump the blood back into the head, we remain unconscious

The fainting person becomes pale and says he feels weak and sees black spots before his eyes. Have him lie flat on the back, with the head lower than the feet.

Do not prop the head up with a pillow as is apt to be done. Apply cold compresses to the face. Make sure that there is no difficulty in breathing. Loosen clothing particularly about the chest and about the throat.

If you have a bottle of smelling salts handy, use it although I believe it does not help very much. A teaspoonful of Aromatic Spirits of Ammonia in half a glass of water is very helpful if the victim is unconscious, do not force any liquids down the throat, but wait until consciousness is regained

An attack of fainting may often be warded off by gently slapping the face two or three times. Then instruct the patient to sit with the head lowered and bent down between the knees.

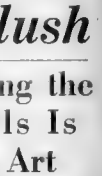
Tinting the Nails Is an Art

By MISS HUDDLESTON.

WITH THE ever-increasing popularity of vividly colored nail polishes tinting the nails has become an art A the fine points of color distinction formerly used in rouge are adapted to this new definitely established branch of beauty culture

From out of the mass of different colors of polish for the nails and from constant experimentation by those who are specially interested in helping creat true beauty for all women, there has developed certain basic rules for the use of colored nail polishes.



Josephine Huddleston

When Fashion first favored the highly tinted nail, women just went in for the fad in a large way regardless of the condition of their hands, the suitability of the occasion, the color of the polish and every other established beauty creed Bright-red nails were in and that seemed to cover any question of ridicule and be duty-destroying effect if it were so

Even now many all that is correct. Every woman must consider her type and general personality before she chooses her nail polish and she must realize that this is just as serious a matter as the selection of her rouge or the choice of colors for her wardrobe

For example, the woman who has not the dash of spirit or personality to carry off the unusual, simply must not use bright-colored polishes. If she attempts it she makes her fingernails the most prominent part of her ensemble and no matter how sweet and charming her personality may be, it will be submerged in general and only note out in the tips of her vivid fingernails.

Blondes who should favor the yellowish cast in cheek and lip rouge, will find those nail polishes with an orange or yellow tinge most suitable. The color itself not only blends better with the blonde complexion, but prevents a confusion of conflicting reds which is to be avoided at all times.

Those with titian-colored hair also should favor nail polishes with the orange tinge. Brunettes, however, who use the deeper shades of cheek and lip rouge to their advantage will be quite safe in selecting the true red shades of polish for their nails.

made why what is seven dollars a week and the first thing you know the car will be his without any strings on it and then oh joy he gets a raise

Well, no, the office boy isn't making very much of a salary—$15 a week—to be honest about it —and men making $75 and $100 a week in the same office think they are hard-boiled eggs

None of these things bother the office boy He isn't musing about tomorrow or yesterday or worrying about today and today he simply must have a car and none of the girls will even look at him

And when the girls won't look at him—life will indeed be a blank

Some day the office boy will wish he was an office boy again and have no more to worry about but the dream of a car

Don't worry, your dreams were as pleasant and as easy? Honestly now don't you?

BOSTON'S LUCKY GIRL

Son Is Linked to Maid's Story of Sensational Farnsworth Death

CHAPTER 55.

"WIDOW CLEARED IN FARNSWORTH MURDER

Demented Maid Kills Self After Penning Confession to Slaying Rich Man

"CATRINE FARNSWORTH, pretty young widow, convicted last Tuesday of the murder of her millionaire husband, today stands innocent of the crime.

"A demented housemaid, Marguerite Spinney, now a suicide, was the real murderer of Alfred E. Farnsworth.

"This sensational development in a case that has already attracted national interest, came with the simultaneous finding of the Spinney woman's body and the confession she had written before taking a fatal overdose of opium.

"Credit for the dramatic vindication of Mrs. Farnsworth, in the face of her conviction in Judge East's court, is freely given to her own attorneys, Jesse F. Allen and Henry A. Gunther.

Weak Point

"In refusing to accept the apparently inevitable, they sought desperately for a way out of the tangled mess of circumstantial evidence that enmeshed their pretty client. They chose as a weak point in the prosecution's case the disappearance of Marguerite Spinney, held at the beginning of the trial as a material witness for the State.

"It was the Spinney woman who was in the house with Mrs. Farnsworth on the night of the murder

"The attorneys for the defense were confident that a thorough examination of this woman would bring out facts vital to the case, and the courses pursued by their quarry is seen now in the virtual admission of District Attorney Robert Macmillan that the new evidence clears Mrs. Farnsworth.

"The confession of Marguerite Spinney is now in the hands of the district attorney. It is a long, painfully written document whose details dovetail perfectly in clearing up hitherto mysterious elements in the case. In the opinion of the prosecution, the confession will necessitate setting aside the jury's verdict and granting Mrs. Farnsworth a new trial. This, however, promises to be a mere formality, and the case will probably be dismissed on motion of the district attorney.

"The finding of Marguerite Spinney and the contents of her confession form a strange chapter in criminal history.

"It was not until late last night that Mrs. Farnsworth's attorneys, working desperately, finally succeeded in finding the missing housemaid in a tenement lodging house.

Trailed by Police

"Convinced that they had found her hiding place, and accompanied by Officers Jenks and Burgess of the northern police station, they rapped on the door. After repeated raps had elicited no response, the officers broke down the door.

"They found the body of Marguerite Spinney, dressed all in white, lying on the bed. Her long, dark red hair streamed over the pillow and she appeared at first to be sleeping.

"Coroner Webster estimates that she had been dead about seven hours.

"It is believed that the woman was not a dope addict, and that the opium which caused her death was procured with suicidal intent.

"In her confession, found by her side, the dead woman revealed the long, sordid story of her relations with the Farnsworth family. The murder was the result of a lifetime grudge against the men of the family. It is revealed also in the confession that the maid intended to kill Chester T. Farnsworth, her victim's son. Grieving because her act had resulted in the unmerited arrest and conviction of her beloved mistress, the half-crazed woman decided to confess and commit suicide as the best way out of the situation

"Police are working to clear up several obscure angles of the case, including the source from which the Spinney woman procured the opium."

FAR-SWORTH'S SON LINKED IN MURDERER'S CONFESSION

Wealthy Clubman Revealed As Father of Child Born to Housemaid Killer

"The amazing confession that has cleared Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth of all suspicion in the murder of her millionaire husband involves Chester T. Farnsworth, rich young clubman and son of the murdered man, in what may be serious charges

"Following are the latest developments in the case:

"1. Chester T. Farnsworth is revealed in the confession as the father of an illegitimate child born to Marguerite Spinney, suicide and self-confessed murderess.

"2. The district attorney promises that the full confession of the Spinney woman will be made public tomorrow.

"3. Coincident with the expected dismissal of the case against Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth, it was intimated today that charges of perjury will be filed against Chester T. Farnsworth, in connection with his testimony in the trial.

"4. V. J. Althouse and Wilbur Burns, who corroborated Farnsworth's testimony against Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth, may also face perjury charges.

"5. Allan and Gunther, attorneys for Mrs. Farnsworth, have traced the full connection of the Spinney woman with the Farnsworth family, revealing a startling story of love, envy, jealousy and hate extending over two generations.

"The mother of Marguerite Spinney, a widow known as Maggie Spinney, was for seven years a housekeeper for the late Horace Farnsworth, who died in 1915. The woman, Maggie Spinney, came into his employ shortly after the death of his wife, Hannah, in 1908. She was dismissed in 1925 for misconduct with an Oscar Leeds, butler in the house, Leeds, after several aliases, disappeared at the same time, and probably left the vicinity for good

Loses Mind

"Brooding over her dismissal and disgrace, the Spinney woman seems to have rapidly lost her mind. She attributed all her misfortune to her late employer and at first bitterly accused him of having turned her lover, Leeds, against her. Later she seems to have changed her story and accused Horace Farnsworth of the paternity of her daughter, Marguerite, who was born that same year. She made several half-hearted attempts to blackmail the aged millionaire, and on the 28th of May, 1926, he swore out a warrant against her, which he withdrew her charges, and the case was dropped.

"She died on June 2, 1902, when the daughter, Marguerite, was seven. Tuberculosis is recorded as the cause of death, though starvation was hinted at by neighbors. She never worked after leaving the Farnsworth house and her small savings rapidly dwindled. Toward the last she and the child, Marguerite, lived in almost unbelievable squalor and poverty.

"A few days before her death she sent the child Marguerite to the Farnsworth house, with a note to the wife of Horace Farnsworth's son, Alfred, then mistress of the house. The note, which was found with papers on file in the late Alfred Farnsworth's safe, declared that she was the daughter of Horace Farnsworth, and pleaded for her care during her lifetime.

"The love affair between her and the late Alfred Farnsworth's child, Chester, developed after Alice Farnsworth's death. The Marguerite was about 14 and the Farnsworth boy 16. Alfred Farnsworth immediately sent Chester to a school in the East. Marguerite's active hatred of him seems to have begun at that time

"On Chester's return from school the affair was resumed, culminating in the birth of a child to Marguerite, in Marysville, Cal. It was left in the care of a consumed Scandinavian residents of Marysville, and died within a few months. Marguerite kept the knowledge of its death from Chester, and exacted payments from him over a period of years. All knowledge of the child was kept from Alfred Farnsworth, who is the father of. Reports of his death believed his son innocent of any relationship with the maid, and let her feel his disgust at what he frequently called her brazen behavior and attempt to ensnare his son.

"Many of these facts were brought out at the trial, but flatly denied by Chester Farnsworth."

Some Dreams Are Pleasant

Office Boy and His Sport Car

By WINIFRED BLACK

THE OFFICE boy wants a car. He wants a car so desperately that he can hardly sleep nights for thinking about it

Winifred Black

And sometimes when he is asleep he dreams about the car—it's always a roadster; one hung on a sporty tilt with cadillacs that no one can pass for a mile, and a toot that would wake the peaceful dead

It shines like polished jewelry —the car in the dream It takes hills like an eagle flying from peak to peak and it never runs out of gas and never stumbles and never skids and never, no never needs "overhauling"

The tires are toreal and the tightest whisk of a dust cloth keeps the whole car polished and shining like a brand-new cake of ice fresh from the icehouse

The cushions are softer than any down and the seat is so broad and so deep that it will hold half a dozen "kids," and as many "janes," all at the same time without the least bit of crowding

No, the office boy has no garage for the car of his dreams, and of course oil and gas cost a good deal of money, but the office boy lives in the suburbs and he has to go back and forth to his work on the train every day, and he is, oh, so tired of trains and street cars—and walking everywhere

It isn't going to be any trouble at all to pay for the motor car the office boy says

The first payment will be a little difficult for him to make, for he knows two or three people who won't mind lending him a few hundred dollars, and when he gets his pay days it will be no trouble at all to pay them back again, and what are friends for if they're not ready to help you about a little necessary thing like this

And after the first payment is

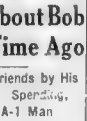
Forbes Warned Curb About Bob Long Time Ago

Bob Won Friends by His Grandiose Spending, Woods A-1 Man

By B. C. Forbes

New York, Oct. 24—I warned the New York Curb Exchange governors long ago against Charles V. Bob, the now missing promoter, and his stock "Bobberies." When I appeared before them, their attitude towards me plainly was hostile. I had urged them to look into Bob's previous record and told them where they should seek information; but I got the very strong impression that these Curb brokers were more indifferent than anxious to dig into the truth.



B. C. Forbes

Bob's market operations were then providing handsome commissions for Curb brokers, and the records, it is hinted, would show that he didn't neglect to hand out his favors to those brokers influential with those running the Curb market.

As part of the rigging of the market in Rainbow Luminous, then one of Bob's star performers in the stock market, it was made difficult, sometimes impossible, for short sellers to borrow the stock, with the consequence that victims were compelled to cover.

Then Rainbow Luminous tumbled heading. After having been successively rocketed to 73 in face of a United States Supreme Court decision branding the company as a patent infringer, the stock fell and fell until there was no bid before which were picked off on Curb Market when the Bob scandal reached its bursting point!

Overtures made to me at the time I was striving to have the New York Curb Exchange investigate Bob's previous record and the stock operations he was then conducting only served more vigorously to convince me that Bob would sooner or later come a cropper.

My criticisms of Bob's practices brought me bitter denunciation from his friends. He was responsible for his lavish handing out of money to win popularity and to inspire confidence in him. When dear old Dr. Reisner told me how nobly Mr. Bob had encouraged the building of the magnificent Broadway Tabernacle, I hinted that I would rather have Bob's money than be profiled. The Bob pledges remain unpaid.

The authorities are talking much more than they are acting. At this writing no warrant had been issued for Bob's arrest, notwithstanding frequent official statements that the records reveal such action was warranted.

The New York Curb Exchange has developed outstanding leaders, the writer used personally to collect all of the daily sales when the brokers did their business out in the street. Its code has been tremendously improved. The Bob episode, however, suggests that there is room for further improvement if the public are to be protected against the exchange facilities being abused by promoters of questionable reputation.

War demands heroic action War having been declared against unemployment, the government, states, municipalities and wealthy corporations should not hesitate to take heroic action. We cheerfully spent billions—many billions—during the World War. Why not spend a fraction of that total in fighting unemployment? Abnormal conditions justify abnormal remedies.

Big corporations, financial institutions, other wealthy enterprises and organizations should be asked to contribute very generously to unemployment funds. Such action is coming when industry will have to accept the responsibility and provide steady employment, if it flagrantly refuses to accept this responsibility, drastic and probably disastrous legislation must be expected.

President Hoover's selection of Col. Arthur Woods, ex-police commissioner of New York as outstanding head of unemployment relief is an ideal. He did similar work during the 1921 emergency and did it well.

Like most of us, the stock market is having its ups and downs. Our up-sides will eventually win handsomely. Don't doubt that.

MIXED TREND IN BOSTON STOCK DEALINGS

Price trend was mixed on the Boston Stock Exchange today with the trading volume light. Changes ranged from fractions to 2 points or more. Metropolitan Edison broke through to new low territory on a decline of 2 points

Bigelow-Sanford, after selling a point higher, reacted 2 points to touch its previous low for the year. An early rise of a minor fraction was converted to a loss in American Founders.

Boston & Albany dropped 1¼. Union Twist Drill eased a point and Boston Elevated showed a fair amount. General Electric and Edison each gained 2 points. Gillette reacted slightly after an early gain of a point.

American Telephone, United Shoe and U. S. Overseas each sold a point higher

The Boston Stock Exchange advised that the voting trust dated June 1, 1925, under which stock trust certificates of Boston Edison Company were issued, has been terminated as of Sept. 17, 1930. Voting rights attached to the stock is available for common stock by delivery of the same to the Lawyers Trust Company, 160 Broadway, New York N. Y., agents for the voting trustees.

The voting trust certificates for common shares United Electric Coal Companies, now on the list are therefore dropped therefrom.

Incorporated in Pennsylvania, shareholders have been growing month by month, yet the stock along with the rest has been making new lows for the year. On Oct. 1 Pennsylvania had 212,311 shareholders, a gain of 4,157 over Sept 1, and of 27,314 over corresponding month last year. At its new low recently of 61⅞ the stock showed a decline of 21¾ from high of the year.

Evidently the buying has been better than the selling but there was obviously more room for still han good buying.

However the reduction in floating supply is beneficial in the long run. As in the past, investment buying eventually will build the foundation for better prices

STORES' SALES MORE ACTIVE

Department store sales have been active, though less satisfactory than expected by many, the Bradstreet's weekly review of local business conditions says.

"Business conducted by dry-goods and men's furnishings jobbers during the week showed a moderate increase in material increase," it said, "although some houses report volume only slightly above that of a year ago. Men's clothing remains quiet. Cloak and suit jobbers report business quiet. Specialty shops report business as quiet.

"Unsettling conditions in the shoe trade are having an unfavorable effect on sale and upper leather market activity. Dealers in these lines report limited sales and tendency toward quietness and uncertain future prices. Glazed kid has been fairly active and in demand.

"Shoe manufacturers are winding up the season's production with prospect of lower prices and present spotty 'fill-in' orders Wholesalers and retailers locally report no change from generally below normal business.

"General volume in wholesale jewelry business is 30 per cent ahead of last year's, the wool market, but it lacks snap and prices have a tendency to be mixed with cheaper grades a little soft and finer grades firm."

29 P. C. of Wealth in U. S. Represented in Securities

New York, Oct. 24—Market value of stocks and bonds listed Oct 1 represented 29 per cent of estimated total wealth of the United States.' It is because of this that many feel a sustained improvement in security values would do more toward restoring confidence than anything else.

There are 10,000,000 or more security holders, with holdings spread widely among all classes. Over the past quarter of a century the stock and bond market have been the chief outlet for surplus wealth. In view of this, sinking stock markets such as recently have been a major influence in shaping business sentiment.

ANNIVERSARY OF CRASH SEES LEADERS RISE

New York, Oct. 24—The first anniversary of Wall Street's "black Thursday" was a bright Friday today.

A large assortment of leading stocks bounded up 2 to 5 points or more. Trading was light, but the advance was broad, embracing rails, particularly the Van Sweringen group, yesterday's soft spot.

BAD DAY FOR BEARS

Indications of an ending of hostilities in Brazil, reassuring analyses of the steel industry by executives attending the meeting of the American iron and steel institute, and John J. Raskob's assertion that the motor industry had touched bottom, gave the bears a bad day, despite omission of the Montgomery Ward dividend.

American Can, Chesapeake Corp., Atchison and Eastman gained 3 points. High fliers were Allied Chemical and Pere Marquette, up 8. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were static gained 4.

General Electric, Erie, Consolidated Gas, Chesapeake & Ohio, Corn Products and International Telephone gained 3. General Motors and North American rose more than 2.

Montgomery Ward, however, closed off 3. The closing tone was strong, nevertheless. Total sales were about 2,760,000 shares.

In the rails, recovery of the Van Sweringen issues was conspicuous.

Leaders of the steel industry, at the institute meeting a year ago, were inclined to minimize the probable effects of the decline in the stock market, and the present indications, then apparent, but today's speakers demonstrated that faith in the future of the industry had not been impaired by the trying 12 months that have intervened.

They found the basic structure still sound and stated that by refraining from uneconomical price cutting, and over-expansion, the industry might struggle back to normalcy in a reasonably short time. James A. Farrell, president of U. S. Steel, asserted that, through cooperation, the industry could get business back "where it belongs" in 60 days.

BRAZILIAN ISSUES UP

News from Brazil indicating that the revolution had been concluded with little bloodshed or property damage caused a fresh decline in coffee, as a reaction from the upturn which had been based on expectations of delayed shipments, but Brazilin securities rallied sharply, tending further to bolster speculative confidence.

Copper prices were reduced fairly generally to 9⅝ cents a pound, a new low for more than 30 years.

A construction development moved in copper trade circles, however, was an early conference with African producers looking to curtailment of production. The large red metal resources of that continent, mostly undeveloped, have caused some uneasiness.

Reports of the conference of statisticians in industry, meeting under the auspices of the Industrial Conference board, pointed to signs of recovery, but added "the first half of October gives little evidence that the convalescent stage in the business cycle is at hand."

WARD DIVIDEND OFF

Directors of Montgomery Ward & Co. today omitted the quarterly dividend of 75 cents due on the common stock at this time.

A statement by the company said the directors decided that it was in the best interest to stockholders to discontinue payment of the dividend on the common stock and that, while the company is in a strong financial position, with a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of 12 to 1, directors considered it prudent to conserve the company's resources so that ample funds will be available for the future development of the business.

Railroad bonds made an irregular recovery today coincident with the upturn in shares. The market remained two sided, however, for speculative issues failed to share in the improvement.

All but one producer and all of the custom smelters today were offering copper in the domestic market at 9½ cents a pound, delivered to the end of February. The new domestic level marked a reduction of one-half a cent a pound for the producers and brought them to the level at which some custom smelters have been offering the metal for the past few days. The price is the lowest for the metal in more than 30 years, and compared with an 18-cent price a year ago.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, Oct. 24—Cotton future today closed steady, 9 to 10 points higher; December 10.95-86; January 11.29; May 11.54-55; July 11.70-71. Spot steady; middling 11.

Safeway Stores' Outlook Bettered

Present indications are that Safeway Stores, Inc., this year will show net of $5 to $6 a share available for its $5 common dividend, said President Skaggs.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Oct. 24—Grains closed lower today. Wheat was off 2c to 3c, corn ¾ to 1¼c and oats ⅛ to ⅜c. Rye finished ½ to 1c down.

LEATHER SOLD UNDER COST OF PRODUCTION

By FRANK H. MELOON

Few economists believe that goods can long be sold below the cost of production. Such sales in the past have always been for a very limited period. No wonder a brighter view is now being taken of the outlook in the commodities markets. A leading New England shoe man tells us he has lately been buying not sole leather and upper leather under the cost of production. The first of the week a leader in the rubber industry declared crude rubber was now selling under the cost at which it could be produced. This sort of thing, of course, cannot last a great while. Shrewd buyers today are following the advice to stock up while the buying can be done so advantageously for them.

Significant straws in the commodity markets which came to light during the past 24 hours were the marking up of wheat from four to six cents all over Europe by the Soviet government, and the advance in the price of refined sugar by leading Boston and New York refiners.

* * *

With steel and transportation problems greatly before the public at this time, it is interesting to note that the two industries are greatly interwoven. Ex parte is well illustrated by the fact that the world's largest individual buyer of steel today is President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway. President Beatty is frequently heard as a speaker in Boston, Portland and other centers.

E. W. Beatty

Although an athlete, Mr. Beatty stands in isolation at an important executive who avoids golf as "an involving repression."

The C. P. R. under the direction of Mr. Beatty operates more than 15,000 miles of railroad track in Canada and controls 5000 more miles in the United States—a mileage far greater than that of any railroad of the United States. It has a fleet of transoceanic steamers on the Pacific, another on the Atlantic, and still others on the Great Lakes and in the coastal service—in all 68 ships of 511,438 tons. The company owns 4,685,000 acres of farms, town sites, and timber lands with gas, petroleum and mineral rights.

It owns 49 per cent of the stock of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, the second largest mining company in Canada. It owns a string of magnificent hotels throughout Canada, and conducts its own express and telegraph systems, encourages immigration and generally is engaged in empire building. The company has recently announced its entry into the aviation field.

* * *

A New Englander, President James A. Farrell of 26 Broadway, is the largest individual seller of steel in the world.

Current market for Boston Elevated indicates belief in State Street regardless of the referendum vote at the coming election, the legislature will do nothing to change the current status of the Boston Elevated.

City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan of Boston will receive bids until noon, Oct. 29 for proposals for $1,480,000 of 3¾ per cent serial bonds, dated Nov. 1, 1930, with maturities as follows: 1931 to 1935, $227,000 each year; 1936-40, $325,000 each year; 1941-45 $279,000 each year and 1946-50, $195,000 each year.

N. E. POWER HAS GAIN IN GROSS

Earnings of the New England Power Association for the first eight months of 1930 continue to hold well above the 1929 totals, even though there was a slight recession in September.

Gross earnings for the first nine months are up 2 per cent and the balance for reserves and common dividends is 10 per cent higher than a year ago. In September nilowatt hour production was off 10½ per cent but gross earnings were down 6-10 of 1 per cent and the balance for reserves and common dividends declined only 2.8 per cent.

President Frank D. Comerford of the New England Power Association said today:

"The seasonal improvement in September did not come up to expectations. Unfavorable factors continue to be found in transportation earnings, poor industrial demand and abnormally poor water conditions."

Packard Dividend Action Is Coming

Directors of Packard Motor Car Co. will meet before the end of the month for the purpose of declaring a dividend payable in December. Dividend action was not scheduled for directors' meeting Wednesday.

GANGSTER GIRL -:- By Jack Lait

where he "hit the stem" and beautiful girls cooked and lit his pill.

Was a "Hophead"

For Silk Freeman was a "hophead." The thrill of the exhilarating poppy had him clutched. Each day at about 4 o'clock he got the yenyen. When in the spasm of the deep breath from the slender pipe he was shrewder than a railroad president ever was—normal.

Then he schemed out his big deals and his broad campaigns. And after that he slept. They say he slept. No one had ever seen him sleep. No one knew when he slept. He was up and about at all hours of the night, and around again too early next morning for his stooges.

He must have had contact with a thousand people every day. Wherever he was, whatever he was doing, strange looking men were pussyfooting in, buzzing in his ear, handing him papers or getting papers from him.

He kept an office in one of his big skyscrapers. There bookkeepers tallied figures, secretaries answered calls and talked in the lingo of the turnaround of trade. The names on the door were blinds. The Big Boy, as they called him (and it was abbreviated to B. B.) became there. His day wasn't long enough. And when he added the night to it, there still wasn't time to do the lives he had pyramided for himself.

His office was in his hat. His hat cost $25. And it sat on a $25,000,000 head. The head had sandy hair, the kind that would never grow gray.

A Rich Man

He didn't know what he was worth. As long as he could dodge the inevitable assassination which was to be his finish, he was a rich man. When that would come many of his associates knew, with him for there was no other man who could juggle Silk Freeman's playthings and keep them off the ground. He had neither wife nor child to get rich for. He just wouldn't. At 37 he was a bachelor in his heart and a loanshark in his soul.

He was no coward. True, he carried two body guards. He had earned them. He had double-crossed the world. He had snatched all his debts, straight or crooked; he had put the hah-hah on every dollar he owed, he had every pledge he ever made and obligation, figuring that a man who served a sense of humor was a man who was afraid to disown it. He had taken whatever came his way on whatever terms he could make and chunks and clumps who could be bought, licked, out-guessed or knocked off. It was the American way.

And his America took for it.

So Polack Annie knew. She was under his hospitality, in his custody and at his mercy. An orphan, a fugitive, an unwed widow and a derelict, she had best Chicago.

"Secretary" Gleason and his triumphant mob of murderers, finding out that she had blasted Nicky King, their chieftain, with the Edgewater Kid's gold automatic, had taken her for a ride—but she had made a miraculous get-away.

Kept It Secret

Silk had been Goldie's New York connection in some of the underground networks of booze manipulating. He didn't tell him that it was she who had blown Goldie's belly out with his own gilded gats. It was half likely a hep party like Freeman knew it. Anyway—

She had limped in flat. B. B. had given her hostage, hospital and sanctuary. He had given her the needs o. existence and more. She could sign for whatever her stomach craved or her heart okayed. So far he hadn't demanded a thing. She had no illusions of Silk Freeman. She had no need to have. She could have written next week in her sleep.

And there he was seated beside her bed, looking at her as only he could look at anyone. She drew her chilled hands up her silken shins to hug her knees, cased in pajamas. Polack Annie was no sophomore, herself.

"Right, B. B.," she said. "Now, what's the orders, the instructions—or the proposition?

"Well! Just a broad, after all this. I'll give you the orders in a minute. The instructions go with 'em. The proposition—that'll come later. Now, get me right. I like you. That is, I like you as much as I can like anybody. But you have to work. I've got a racket all lined up for you."

"Is it juicy?"

"Juicy? It's gooey!"

The telephone rang.

On the Launch

The bluff bows of the deep-bowled launch gently pushed aside the meggy, milky fog that clung to the waters of New York bay. Now and again the motor shot a shiver through the frame of the big, black, bulky hulk. It was night, moonless, and the craft was running without lights. Foghorns and warning booms from the other river craft sounded like thicks air. In the pilot house stood two men with binoculars glued to their eyes.

The engine-room chamber of the boat carried in its guts a strange cargo. Huddled there were 12 yellow, sinister, bullet-headed Chinese taken off a freighter from Halifax at the 12-mile limit. A contraband cargo smuggled in to be vomited into New York, C. O. D., at $1,000 a head, money to be paid by relatives, employers, friends. A dozen like so many more of the millions of Celestials who live in New York's strange labyrinths of Chinatown, crowd into ...elfish apartments and opium dens, labor in laundries, chop suey places, on truck farms; to join lawless tongs, kill, steal and ravish—illegitimate intruders, unwanted at home, unwanted here.

To the crew and the ruffians who sat on deck these creatures were just pigs. If a "rap" threatened, and this was a Federal offense, hard to square or beat, the "monkeys" would be jettisoned without hesitation. They were worth $12,000 landed alive, but—

Suddenly two shrill blasts, answering a signal from the pilot house. It meant trouble to port. In an instant ten burlies rushed the hold.

A government cutter was chasing. Rat-a-tat cams machine-gun fire 125 bullets to the minute.

All Had "Saps"

The gangsters all had "saps" in their hands, blackjacks. They came at the huddle Chinks and smashed them over their heads, again and again. There was chaotic wailing and jabbering—and then silence except the oaths of the hoodlums and the socks of their saps. They picked up the limp forms, carried them one and two at a time and dumped them into the water.

The motor had stopped. The cutter drew up. Uniformed coast guards boarded. They went through the whole crafts. Nothing contraband was found. The coast guards snickered. They knew something.

The telephone bell in sight-o Hotel Napoleon rang. Annie answered. "B. B.—oh, yes—right here."

"Yeh," said Silk Freeman. "How? You would, you fumble-fingered fool."

And he slammed the instrument down.

"We lost a cargo last night," said Silk.

"Cargo?" she queried. "Rubber, hootch, grain, autos or—"

"Monkeys! One of my op'rations. We ease those mustards in at a grand a head. We had a dozen. They got a chase and they knocked 'em on the noodle and chucked 'em to the drink."

Polack Annie, Chicago graduate, drew down.

"Gawd," she breathed. "They're only Chinks—but, yellow or white, that's pretty hard. That's a pretty penny an' dens plenty an' went through plenty in Chicago. But this turns my stomach."

"It don't give me any appetite," chimed in Freeman.

"After all, they're human. Oh, my Lord—twelve human souls sent to kingdom come—gone—"

"Twelve what? Human souls gone? Twelve human souls hell —twelve grand!"

Californians on WLEX Last Night

Another of the popular "roast night" half-hour programs came over WLEX last night, direct from the Hollywood Inn at Tremont and Mart sts. in Boston, where Ralph Calvetti and his Californians are affording dance orchestrations par excellence.

Upon announcement of the Hollywood Inn telephone numbers, with an invitation to call for special requests, Newcomb F. Thompson, officiating at the microphone, was swamped by calls from all sections of greater Boston and New England. It was necessary to employ three Fishermen. WNAC—Fireside Fancies.

Calvetti and the Californians endeavored to please to make many of the listeners as it was possible during the allotted time on the air.

Next Tuesday evening will be theatricel night again at Hollywood Inn and the festivities will go on the air over WLEX as usual.

"PUT ON THE SPOT"

By JACK LAIT

CHAPTER 24

"SO," SMIRKED GOLDIE, Monk—my most faithful boy—coughed up the works, eh? Gangster tell all! It's gettin' to be a fine racket—bimp squeals to the cops. Monk squeals to my sweetie an' comes gittin' for me—not my sweetie, but this fumble-fingered swill-box skimmer like Gleason knock 'em off . . . well, looks like Goldie's got to start all over again an' get himself a new bunch an' a new woman, at that."

Annie listened w'.'s a shudder.

"Did you—was what he said—she turned toward the lifeless remains of Monk and closed her eyes.

"Ree-dic'lous," answered Goldie with an exaggerated gesture. "I loved the kid. I loved him so much, I wanted to p'tect him—his honor! I didn' trust YOU—see?"

She shook her head. She didn't.

"Well, I did. I knew you'd been Kinky King's moll. I figgered when the Kid was out—h'm—maybe Kinky, he comes in. So I have Chimp plant a typewriter across the street to clip Kinky if he comes . . . well, Chimp made a mistake—could I help that?"

And he raised his hands to an axe of innocent despair, typical of his race.

Annie bit her lip.

"So you—you thought I wasn' on the level with the Kid?" she choked out.

"I didn't think so, exactly—on'y thought in case of—"

"But I stayed on an' up with you, I jus' saved your life!"

"Yeah—I heard you—thanks. If I was sure it was for ME you was stallin'—"

"For who else?" demanded Annie. "For God's sake, Goldie—for who else" For who an' for what?"

"You—you mean this?" cried Goldie, now in sincere earnest and gazing eagerly, trembling at the vehement woman.

"Yes—and a whole lot more. I'm a one-man girl. Let's be honest. I never was often. I never could hold my own long. But as long as I hold him he's the only one . . . we'll give 'em a run—Goldie . . . She came toward him, her slender arms outstretched, Goldie—take me in your arms—kiss me—tell me that you love me—I—I love you!"

"Baloo," he breathed, when his nold relaxed, "lemme go. I shave —quick. You pack—quick. We lam—quick. I never think Goldie Gorio could run away from anybody, from anything. My gang shot to h—ll, the cops crossin' me, Chimp probly tippin' off this hold, then stood with one foot advanced, stopped by the picture. Annie's hands were trembling, fell downward. First one and then the other of the shining, smoking automatics dropped of their own weight and bounced on the resilient covering of the floor.

"Well, I'll be damned!" cried the chief.

"You—you got me c—cold this time," stuttered Annie weakly.

"Got you? Yes, baby—I got you . . . beat Gorgeous Ed'?"

"Wh—what?"

"Lam—scram—good work . . . I'm sorry, Goldie, resisted arrest and I had to plug him with his own cannons, but—in the line of duty—"

"How? Who?"

"Me . . . Chimp coughed up the location, I came here in person to arrest Goldie. I grabbed his own gold gats and—well, there he is . . . Annie, take the air.

"Listen, sister, that's your problem. I don't direct traffic. Go anywhere you like—but go! You complicate matters . . . the department needs some Page 1 copy, and you in no part of it this time. So grab your little tin hat and scram."

"Thanks," sighed Polack Annie. "I didn't like you the first time I saw you, Bill."

"Blow! Jump the reservation. I'm getting sore."

"Okay, chief—I'm on my way," and she started for the door. She stopped and turned. "Oh, by the way—I can't get far—I haven't got a dime—not even carfare to town—"

The Chief searched his pockets. He brought up two nickels and four pennies. He scowled into his head in embarrassment. Suddenly his eyes lighted up and a smile broadened over his ample mug. He reached his thumb and one finger down into the little pocket under the watch side of his belt. They came up clutching something. He pushed it into Polack Annie's palm.

"Here," he said, "and good luck to you."

Past the door she looked to see. It was a twenty-dollar gold piece!

published in movie history. In Boston, the showing of this picture will begin one-half hour after the broadcast at 10:30 with a special midnight performance.

Tonight's radio program will be divided into two parts with Amos 'n' Andy appearing in a sketch in the first and then making a limited departure in part two by appearing before the microphone for the first time as Messrs. Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll, in person, and telling of the adventures of Amos 'n' Andy in Hollywood.

Today being the birthday of Admiral Richard E. Byrd, it seems to be an excellent time for Evangeli- ' ' ams, noted astrologer, to top a prize with her horoscopes and charts hitting on all six. According to Miss Adams, Admiral Byrd couldn't help but succeed in his search for the South Pole because success by Southern travel was written in the heavens at the moment he was born.

Says Miss Adams: "Our youngest and handsomest admiral has both Venus and Jupiter, the lesser and greater fortune, in the idealistic sign Sagittarius and in favorable aspect to the adventurous Neptune. He has Uranus, the god of exploration, in that portion of the heavens ruling foreign lands, especially Southern lands; and the same thing is true of his Sun and Mercury. This condition indicates success through travel in all parts of the world, but particularly in those portions of the globe south of his sphere of birth. Success granted in his flights to Europe and across the North Pole because of his generally favorable aspects for such undertakings."

Some Aviation Items

Who Is Really "Backward"?

Aviation news, at random:

"FOUR AIR SERVICES for passengers and freight are inaugurated in French Indo-China by the company Aerienne Francaise."

"FIRST AEROPLANE service between the Netherlands and Java, marking the inauguration of Dutch air mail and passenger service between the Netherlands and the Netherland East Indies is marked by the arrival of the planes at Batavia. The planes are all-metal, carry sixteen passengers and the trip can be accomplished in eleven days."

"AN AEROPLANE service is to be installed to connect Afghanistan and Persia. It will be from Kabul through Herat to Meshed, where it will connect with the airlines to Baku, Moscow and Berlin."

"PARCEL POST packages may now be carried by air from Brazil to Europe by virtue of permission granted by the Director-General of the Brazilian Post Office to the French Air Transportation Company."

"POSSIBILITY of an airline between England and Gibraltar is being considered by the British government. The Royal Air Force has been surveying possible bases on the Portuguese coast."

"THREE HUNDRED AND THIRTY airplanes arrived at and departed from 'La Aurora' airport at Guatemala City in the first six months of this year."

"THE FIVE COMPANIES operating air services in Bavaria, Germany, substantially increased their business this year."

"A NEW AIR SERVICE connecting Venice, Ancona and Brindisi will be operated by the Italian company which operates the Rome-Venice-Vienna service."

"AN EXTENSION of the Marseille-Bagdad air route to Saigon, French Indo-China, is proposed by the operating company. Pending an understanding with the Indian government, passengers and mails will be carried by train from Karachi to Calcutta, where they will be picked up by the Air-Orient planes flying to Saigon via Akyab, Rangoon and Mergin."

People of New England, pick up your atlases and glance at these routes. You will be impressed by the fact that these Foreign Nations have the good sense to develop their "commercial" aviation along the trade and MILITARY routes they need to keep open for defense or offense. And we, in our superciliousness, often regard them contemptuously as "backward peoples."

English Jews Act

Protest England's Stand on Palestine

The Boston Evening American four months ago advised all American citizens, regardless of their racial extraction or political affiliation, to unite in a mighty protest against the ruthless abuse of the Jews in Palestine.

We cannot say that organized liberality is dead in New England, but we can say the protests they issued had the metallic sound of peas against a tin pan.

Unfortunately, what we then predicted has dismally come true. The Jews have suffered recurring abuses and losses of their inherent rights. They are denied the opportunity of immigration and of restoration of their homeland. They are deprivileged of the right to practice their ancient faith in consonance with its historical tenets.

While Americans as a whole content themselves with euphemistic resolutions against those abuses and while they fail utterly to apply the economic pressure which is the only instrument for justice recognized by most European statesmen, the sturdy English Jews like Lord Melchett and Dr. Chaim Weizmann bravely denounce the government responsible for these crimes and, by their boldness, bring into relief the shallow courage here.

The United States was fortunate not to have accepted mandates arising out of the World War and through the instrumentality of the League of Nations, which is shown in this situation, as in many others, to be not an arbiter of justice. The good judgment of the American people saved us from the bad judgment of the supercilious statesmen.

Happy Mill Employes

Their Jobs Are Sure

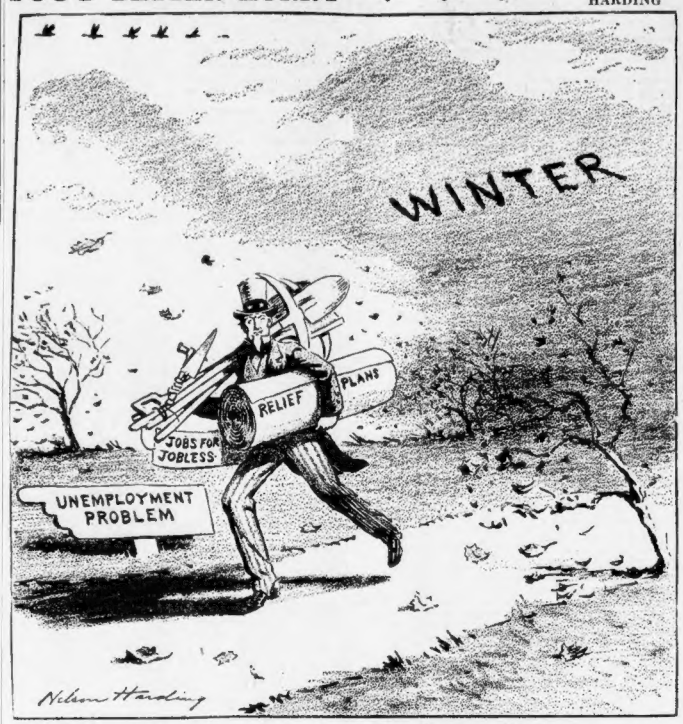
Treasurer Ernest N. Hood informs us, and we are happy to record it, that steady employment throughout the Winter months is definitely guaranteed for the 2000 regular employes of the Pequot Mills at Salem and the Danvers Bleachery in Peabody. And at least part-time employment, which may become permanent, is to be provided for 200 extra hands.

The sheeting business has revived, he said, but there has been an extraordinary increase in the pre-holiday purchases of gift sets, merely through the device of offering them to customers in more attractive packages.

A happy Christmas is assured the employes of these mills. And we venture to say that while the ingenuity of its managers was in part responsible for it, a great deal of the credit can be given to the men and women of New Englaand, who decided to spend a dollar or two extra every week, as urged by the Boston Evening American, in order that steady jobs at good wages might be provided for all.

YOU'D BETTER HURRY

By NELSON HARDING



Get a move on, Uncle Sam,
This cold snap should remind you
That winter's coming on apace
And now is close behind you.

You haven't hurried very much,
But these cold blasts should make you
Speed up with jobs and funds and help
Lest winter overtakes you.

Listen, World! -:- Grow Up

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Dare to Take Yourself Seriously

I READ this the other day—

"One should not make the mistake of taking other people or oneself too seriously. Life on this planet is so short that one ought to crowd it with enjoyment, with laughter, with jokes, with a devil-may-care manner that characterizes true youthfulness."

Elsie Robinson

And there you have a fairly accurate statement of our 20th century attitude toward life. The philosophers say that it is a reaction against the sentimentality of our 19th century elders who took themselves so seriously that life became a sour and sloppy affair. But I suspect there's more to it than that. We're secretly afraid, we smarty moderns. Afraid we'll make ourselves ridiculous by aiming too high and hoping too much. And afraid of cheating ourselves out of today's fun by planning for tomorrow's adventure.

Why are we here? We don't know. Where are we going? We don't know that either. So what's the use of acting seriously about a life that may end tomorrow? Better to play! Grab while the grabbing is good! Then if the end comes, we'll have the laugh on Death instead of Death having the laugh on us.

So we reason in our smartness and fear. But it's weak and silly. FOR EVEN IF THIS IS ALL THE LIFE THERE IS, ALL THE MORE REASON FOR LIVING IT IN THE GRAND MANNER.

We smile at the seriousness of our grandfathers—we think their lives were dreary and drab. But they actually treated themselves more handsomely than we do. They took themselves seriously—as gods do. They acted as if they were lords over life and death. They sacrificed with a splendid recklessness like great gamblers. They took risks and went on large adventures with their souls. Their lives may have been somber but they moved through them with dignity and solemnity. Maybe life is a trivial joke, as these moderns would have us believe—but they staged it like grand opera.

As for us, we made it vaudeville. Kid Komics. We gaily refuse to grow up. We cling to the viewpoints, interests and amusements of sixteen-year-olds. We duck responsibility—dodge risks—consider sacrifice "silly sentimentality"—try in every way to treat life as a joke. And so we cheat ourselves out of whatever beauty and meaning life might hold.

Don't do it! Treat yourself seriously. You may not be immortal but you can act as if you were. You may not have all time at your command, but you have within you beauty and courage and faith and tenderness which are at your command.

Treat yourself seriously. Stop living like a high school freshman. Dare to grow up. Dare to take risks. Dare to live up to the dreams within yourself—

For in the depths of your own heart you DO want to take yourself seriously. You DO want to make a great adventure of life. Then DO it. Don't let a lot of fraid cat smarties kid you out of it.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

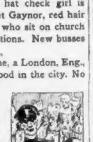
Some Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—Thoughts while strolling: What in the world is a fitted bag fitted for? W. T. Benda, who makes those masks. A West 47th street hat check girl is the image of Janet Gaynor, red hair and all. Beggars who sit on church steps baring afflictions. New busses with side doors.

Eva Le Gallienne, a London, Eng., girl, who made good in the city. No actress in New York inspires such applause as Belle Baker singing "Eli Eli." How many Sobol Brothers are they? That popcorn certainly won't give that gorgeous lady a ticket? He did. The old fish-face.

Who remembers when plates were turned upside down over the silver in setting the table? Something a little bit all right about a young father who pushes a baby buggy these snooty days. Musical exchange bulletin board: "Wanted: Six hot crooners who look like Vallee!"

Comedy counter clowns in the Coffee Pots. A milk white roadster trimmed in garnet leather. And the show girl who drives it. A wise poet fathered the line: "Gather ye rosebuds while ye may!" And who knows right off who won the war of Roses? Gil Patten, the white-haired Frank Merriwell author.



Johnny Groelle, who draws hilarious cartoons of the cross-roads. A movie star has to be good to last six months these days. Youngsters going to Lysistrata—being obscene and not heard. Curb comics are saying Gilda Gray has a touch of writher's cramps. And the new dog song is: "Litter by Litter."

The sun sinks behind Jersey in a splendorous flame. Nothing will renew faith like watching a sunset. And some morning I must sneak up on a sunrise. They are not hard to take either. Rat faced pick-pockets who hang out at jewelry auction sales. They always work out on me in the subways.

Dinner neckers drifting to shadowy Chinese cafes. Orange drink places still running full tilt. The glassy-hard smile of ladies who must live. Mark Hellinger and his wife, Gladys Glad. What inspires a fellow to take up trombone playing as a career?

The dollar-five-and-ten game outlives a fad. Each player goes shopping with a dollar and the one bringing the biggest bundle of five and ten cent store articles to the cocktail party wins all the truck and a dollar from each player. After that everybody settles down to a stretch of serious drinking.

A huge chortle in a musical show: A young girl is asked if she is going to take bacteriology at college. She chirps: "Don't bacilli!" And if the boy editor of College Humor doesn't collect a fair take of royalties on that one he is not commercially conscious.

Speaking of colleges, I recently saw a letter written by a glorious Old Dad to a son who was graduated two years ago. The lad has been clerking in a Paris bank. Said the letter:

"Dear Son: I am transferring $15,000 to your Paris account. At the moment money has a glamour in your eyes. In thirty years the thrill of spending will begin to vanish. I do not expect you to account to me for a penny. If it undermines your moral stamina you would fall later in some other way. So I shall feel no blame. It would please me tremendously, for I love you with a greater devotion than you will ever know, if you wrote me at least twice a month wherever you are, but that is only a fatherly wish and not a command. I have arranged that your job there or one similar in New York awaits your return. You are to have for one year the leisure and freedom I would have liked to have had, but missed.

—Dad."

Then there is the banker's son who left home suddenly in a huff, leaving a note reading: "You haven't a chance to make me one of your vice presidents. I'm determined to amount to something."

Courtney Cooper tells of the East Sider who grew to middle-age without leaving Manhattan Island. Then he went on a trip to Denver. In the middle-west solidity near Cleveland he was gazing out the train window at the pastoral beauty. Finally in a philosophic blurt he exclaimed bright-ly: "No matter where you go, you allus find human life."

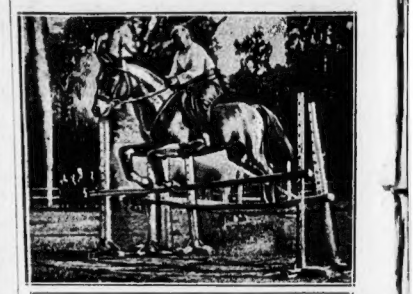
Mussolini's Health

He Wants People to Know That It Is Good



IL DUCE JUMPS FENCES FOR THE REPORTERS

Constant rumors dealing with his health annoy Mussolini. One day, according to rumor, he is about to undergo a dangerous surgical operation. Next day you hear that the operation had been performed weeks before and kept secret.

It is important for the ruler of Italy on whose leadership his followers depend to be looked upon as a strong man.

In this picture you see Mussolini on one of his favorite horses jumping over a hurdle—two of them, in fact, one before the other—to convince newspaper men in the background that there is nothing the matter with him.

Reporters who saw the jumping reported that the Italian dictator kept his hands in the right place, sat close to his saddle and showed not the slightest apprehension or nervousness.

Considering his weight, which has increased of late, the performance was a good one.

Still, the question comes constantly to mind:
AFTER MUSSOLINI, WHAT?
Who will have the strength to carry the load that he has been carrying and the will-power to push plans to completion?

Science of Chemistry

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON, Ph. D.

ONE OF the most modern of sciences is chemistry, and yet it is one of the most useful. It is almost impossible for anyone living today to realize that chemistry as practised today has a history of little more than two centuries. Back of chemistry lies pharmacy, medicine, alchemy. Back of those lay fitful and fantastic theories about the nature of substance, and strange philosophical lucubrations regarding the constitution of matter.

But we have to come down to modern times (speciously to the seventeenth century) to find the true origin of chemical science as we know it today.

The germ of modern scientific method (the root principle) was formulated by Roger Bacon. Boyle, Priestly, Cavendish, Lavoisier laid strong and sure technic and basic principles of true scientific method in chemistry. Liebig, Woehler, Ramsay, Richards and countless others have carried on this technic and these principles in our own era.

For two centuries the science of chemistry did not exist. Investigators there were, and in plenty, from the time of primitive man down through the ages.

But science, such as it was, may best be described as accumulative. Great tomes were written, vast records were kept of the results of observation. If two or more substances were brought together certain things would take place.

The results were known, but the reasons for those results were not understood. Chemistry, like physics, may be described as a science of exact measurement. Chemistry requires elaborate and delicate apparatus—test tubes, retorts, scales, thermometers, barometers and countless pieces of refined machinery which often have to be invented or specially manufactured in order to carry through particular experiments.

Chemistry is dangerous. This has been so ever since the time of the invention of gunpowder and other forms of explosives. It has been demonstrated countless times that nothing is more dangerous in a chemical laboratory than ignorance.

The pharmacist must know which drug or drugs in combination are deadly in their effects. The chemist must know (and know why) certain substances when combined will blow things into smithereens.

For 2000 years science scarcely progressed in theory, beyond the more or less mystical ideas of Aristotle. It was he who formulated the theory that the universe was made up of four elements—earth, air, fire and water.

But today a chemical element is a very different thing to that designated as an element by Aristotle. After a time the study of substances was taken up by a group of people, who called themselves alchemists. Alchemy was a weird combination of religion and science, of superstition and natural philosophy. Spirits were believed to inhabit substances; the elements had their respective deities.

Scientific experiment was a form of magnified fake; chemical and physical demonstrations were made with great hocus pocus. The people must not be enlightened, but must be mystified. Solemn incantations were kept of the results of observation. If two or more substances were brought together certain things would take place.

The results were known, but the reasons for those results were not understood. Chemistry, like physics, may be described as a science of exact measurement. But today a chemical element is a very different thing to that designated as an element by Aristotle. After a time the study of substances was taken up by a group of people, who called themselves alchemists. Alchemy was a weird combination of religion and science, of superstition and natural philosophy. Spirits were believed to inhabit substances; the elements had their respective deities.

Scientific experiment was a form of magnified fake; chemical and physical demonstrations were made with great hocus pocus. The people must not be enlightened, but must be mystified. Solemn incantations were kept of the results of observation. If two or more substances were brought together certain things would take place.

For centuries science had to fight a battle with the church. From Bacon to Priestly scientists were persecuted, imprisoned or punished for following the path of reason. But the battle was won in recent times and chemistry is one of the surest and permanently established institutions of civilization.

Without chemistry our civilization could scarcely endure. The chemistry of food is one of the most useful and indispensable features of modern industry and modern science.

Capital Silhouettes

"TRUTH," says Mark Twain, "is the most valuable thing we have. Let us economize it."

ALSO IT was Mark Twain who said that "faith is believing what you know ain't so," which probably explains why in Chicago so many believe that Jim Ham Lewis is going to take his pink whiskers back for a shingle bob at the Senate barber shop.

GENERAL JAKE COXEY, who back in '92 led his tatterdemalions from the banks of the Ohio to the banks of the Potomac and got thrown into a police station cell for trying to make a speech from the Capitol steps, demands that the Federal Reserve Board come to the rescue by making unsecured loans of $100 a month for 50 months to all the jobless of the country. Come, come, general, we're trying to cut down the number of the unemployed, not increase it.

GENERAL SUMMERALL, the well-known prima donna of the army, reaches Chicago on his farewell tour, and has the "standing room only" sign hanging out.

THE CHINESE reds are murdering as many people nowadays it would be something of a relief to get the familiar old yellow peril back.

THE RAILROAD brotherhoods are out in favor of the six-hour day, which it is estimated, would give employment to 50,00 additional caddies on the miniature golf courses of the country.

IT LOOKS as though the revolution in Brazil might have to be called on account of darkness.

GLORIA SWANSON should worry about being deserted so long as her screen audiences don't do it. After all, it is quite a promotion for the wife of a mere marquis to become once more a movie queen.
